Human Nature and Clothes.

Real Reasons why Young Gentlemen should buy their Clothes here.

It is human nature for every young man to wish to look his best.

Human nature teaches us that because something is cheap it is not necessarily good; that because it is expensive it is not necessarily correct.

Human nature knows that our young men require different styles, different colourings, from those of their elders—and that their clothes must possess youthful spirit and gracefulness that fit the figure at every bend and turn.

We have specialized to a great extent to meet the requirements of these younger men, and whether it be

For Sport, for School, for Vacation, —— or for Evening Wear, ——

We can suit them perfectly.

We have in a bright new stock of tasteful designs and youthful colourings at inexpensive prices, and we shall be pleased to forward patterns and suggestions of style on request.

O.T.C. Inspection, Saturday, June 26.

Our picture of the caste of Henry V is reproduced by kind permission of the Manchester Courier.

Mr. G. E. Pappadimitriou, secretary to the H.O.L.C., has sent a cordial letter of thanks to the High Master for the School collection, which this year amounts to £410 18s. 3d.

The Founder's Day sermon on Thursday, May 20, will be preached by the Vicar of Oldham, the Rev. Ambrose J. Wilson, D.D. He has been headmaster of a school at Melbourne, and at Lancing College.

In a general knowledge paper set at the beginning of term a good many boys seem to have thought that "mortuary" and "crematorium" had been combined in Lewis Carroll's portmanteau fashion into a word much in use after the declaration of war. "A burial place" and "a place where they keep dead bodies for identification," from this point of view, were better shots than "something in memory of a person; it sometimes takes the form of a tablet," or "a place of worship."

A one-time President of the United States would probably turn in his grave if he heard that the Monroe doctrine allowed a man to have as many wives as he liked.

"The Black Watch" means being on duty from 10 p.m. to 2 a.m. We expect this boy's father is a special constable.

Readers of "The Golden Butterfly" will remember that Mr. Gilead P. Beck was very proud of a picture which he called "Cicero in Jail." But even he was not much more widely out than the youth who described Sisera as "the lady who stabbed Jael with a tent-peg while he was sleeping off the effects of a hard campagne (sic)."

Below will be found an obituary notice of the late Mr. H. J. Roby, for many years a Governor of the School, from the pen of Canon Wilson, late Archdeacon of Rochdale, now Canon of Worcester.

We regret to announce the death of the Rev. W. Y. Faussett, Vicar of Cheddar and Prebendary of Wells, who was on the Staff as Classical Master from 1882 to 1885.

To the long list of deaths of O.M.'s chronicled in this number must be added that of E. Crabb, who died about the middle of December, after a sudden and painful illness. He was in the Classical Sixth in the early '70's, and became Assistant Secretary to the Post Office, retiring so recently as August last.

We regret to hear that our old friend and colleague, the Rev. Arthur J. Clark, is laid up again, and the doctor now says finally that he must not live in England. He hopes after a spell at the Sanatorium at Wokingham to get out to St. John's School, Johannesburg, and become a schoolmaster again. May South Africa do for him all that Vailima did for R. L. S. !

Mr. J. H. Whitehouse, M.P., has published a book describing what he saw in Belgium. "Belgium and the War" is published by the Cambridge University Press, with a short preface by Mr. Lloyd George. Those fortunate Upper School boys who heard Mr. Whitehouse lecture at the School will recognise many incidents of the story—the surgeon in the British Field Hospital who was saving a leg broken in 17 places, the benzine lozenges carried by the German soldiers, the desolation and rifling of Termonde, the crowding refugees, the devotion of the priests. The book brings before our eyes, with all their terrible actuality, "the conditions of unexampled misery" set up in a desperate attempt to terrorise a gallant nation into abject submission. Take, for example, the statement of a leading citizen of Liège:

"From the windows of his own house, saved from destruction by chance because it was next to one occupied by a German officer, he saw soldiers going from house to house setting each on fire, and the terrified occupants rushed from the burning houses, the women and children clinging to the men. Again and again he saw the soldiers pull off the women and children and then shoot the men before their eyes."

The book is illustrated with photographs of those scenes which make the Kaiser's heart bleed; one of these shows the part which alcoholism played in this blackest crime of history. These pictures express the facts, but to express the soul of its grim horror there are three cartoons by M. Louis Raemaeker. The book is published in aid of the Belgian Relief Fund. Nothing will appeal so strongly to British sympathies as this terse, restrained statement of the facts by one who saw them.

We are glad to find that the proceeds of the Play amounted to the record sum of £31 6s., which has been handed to the O.T.C.

We note with peculiar pleasure, amongst the names of new members of the O.M. Association, that of the Rev. Fr. Herbert Kelly. Fr. Kelly is a son of the late lamented Canon J. Davenport Kelly (O.M.), and is at present engaged in Missionary work in Japan.

The Acting Secretary of the O.M. Co. of the Special Police (Mr. Tom Whittaker) sends word that he will be glad to hear from any O.M.'s wishing to join, and he particularly wishes to invite any of the older men who have not yet joined "the force."

A number of reports and other contributions are unavoidably held over for the present.

At the end of this number we give the names of members who have failed to notify their change of address. We shall be glad to have the assistance of members in tracing these gentlemen.

WAR ITEMS.

Both Dr. P. A. Lloyd-Jones and Rupert W. Palmer, 2nd Lieut., E. Lancs. Regiment, had the honour of being mentioned in Sir John French's despatch a few days ago. Lieut. Palmer has been awarded a Military Cross.

Mr. Filson Young, the well-known author and editor, is serving as an officer on H.M.S. Lion, under Vice-Admiral Sir David Beatty. He was one of four men not behind armour on the occasion of the North Sea battle, and viewed the engagement from the foretop.

There were two khaki weddings among O.M.'s in the last week of the old year: Capt. Neville Laski to Miss Gaster at Bevis Marks Synagogue (December 29th), and Capt. Adj. E. Moore Mumford to Miss Gladys Cliffe on December 31st. In the latter case Lieut. C. W. Merryweather was "best man."

The following O.M.'s have sent us greetings from Ruhleben: Sydney J. Hahlo, Mendel J. Gordon, Harold Redmayne, C. M. A.

Whitehouse, Israel Cohen (B.A. London), A. N. Taylor, C. W. M. Cookson, Edwin Wallwork, Ernest B. Heiman, and Harry L. Southern.

We regret to record the death, on January 6th, of Percy Frederick Fowkes, who succumbed to an attack of pneumonia while training with the Royal Engineers at Southport. He was buried with military honours on the 9th of January.

Lieut. G. Broadhurst and Lieut. R. W. Palmer, returned from the trenches, have each given a short account of their experiences to the School, in the Drawing Hall, after Prayers. Both speakers described, in an impromptu style, some of the incidents they had witnessed, and stirred the hearts of their hearers to martial ardour. Lieut. Palmer came across a bold German who refused to surrender, though aware of the consequences, and was afterwards found to be wearing an iron cross, which no doubt he had deserved.

Dr. Sidney Davies (O.M.), M.O.H. for Woolwich, who had been interned in Germany since the beginning of August, was released, on the ground of age, at the end of October, and his experiences—not worse than weary and disappointing—appear in the Woolwich Pioneer of October 30th.

The following brief communication has been received from Petty Officer W. Hubbard: “. . . I was the first driver to take a British armoured car to Belgium, under Commander Sampson. I joined the service the day war broke out. So you see I have had to rough it, and I can assure you I have been through some tight corners. . . . My old car was smashed with shrapnel at Ypres, and I was promoted to Petty Officer for work at Antwerp.”

Canada has sent her O.M.'s, West Australia and Brazil have sent theirs. Now E. Africa sends along G. D. Haworth, and Tientsin sends us A. E. Capstick and C. E. Collinge across 12,000 miles of sea. They have been serving, since they have been out there, in the Mounted Infantry, and Capstick was for years in the Territorials before he went out, so they are ready for service. Capstick was one of the crew in the eight and four which defeated the Germans at the Tientsin Regatta. He'll bear his part now in defeating them again in the Western Hemisphere. From India has come R. W. Palmer, B.Sc., who had a post on the Geological Survey; from Tasmania J. L. Waring, and from Buenos Ayres Pte. C. E. Thorp, who has enlisted in the Horse Guards.

* * * *

We publish, at the end of this number, the additional list of O.M.A. members, since the last issue.

Contributions, other than those relating to the O.M.A., will be received by Mr. C. L. Barnes, at the School.

O.M. Chronicle.

C. W. Somerville (late of 5a) has again been successful in the Public School Essay Competition of the Royal Society for the Protection of Birds. Last year he won a prize in the Junior Competition. This year he has been awarded a certificate and book prize in the Senior Division. The subject set was "Our Summer Migrants." The Examiner's Report states that "C. W. Somerville described his birds very pleasantly, the Hirundines especially being well dealt with." The other successful competitors were boys from Haileybury, Eton, and Christ's Hospital respectively.

Dr. Mumford read a paper before the Manchester Medical Society recently on "The estimation of physique and stamina for School purposes." It was reprinted in full in the Lancet on January 16th.

Dr. I. L. Kandel has an article in "School and Society" on "English Schools and the War." He has also published "The General Education Board: An Account of its Activities."

Mr. H. J. Laski, B.A., Lecturer at McGill University, has started the first tutorial class under the Workers' Educational Association in Canada (in connection with the McGill University).

Mr. Jesse Cumberbirch, Jun., has passed the Civil Service Examination for officers in the Customs and Excise. He has been appointed to a station in Scotland.

Mr. R. Hawcridge, M.A., is conducting a Workers' Education Association Class in Batley.

Mr. J. B. Firth and Mr. J. E. Myers are the joint authors of papers on "Some properties of boric acids in alcoholic solution" and "A modified boiling point apparatus" in the Transactions of the Chemical Society (1914).

Mr. R. N. Porter, M.B., F.R.C.S., read a paper entitled "Reflections on the New Republic" before the Derby Nomadic Club on November 27th last (published by the Central Educational Co. Ltd., Derby).

Mr. L. Rayman has been appointed Assistant District Officer at Pekan, in the Federated Malay States.

Mr. F. Pullinger, C.B., has been appointed on a Government Committee to report on the means of finding employment for disabled soldiers.

Mr. Harry Eastwood has been appointed Assistant Engineering Chemist to the City of Chicago.

The libretto of "Goody Two-Shoes," the pantomime now on at the Theatre Royal, was written by Mr. R. C. Oldham.

On the 5th inst., Mr. G. E. Pappadimitriou was installed as Worshipful Master of the O.M. Masonic Lodge. The ceremony was performed by Mr. H. Entwistle, assisted by the Past Masters of the Lodge. Mr. Pappadimitriou has recently taken over the duties of Hon. Treasurer of the Hugh Oldham Lads' Club, and is the representative of that institution on the Executive Council.

At a meeting of the Manchester Mathematical Society on February 10th, Mr. J. H. Doughty read a paper on "A problem in the theory of concentration as applied to warfare."

Dr. R. B. Nicholson, M.B., Captain, Indian Medical Service, has been appointed Senior Specialist in Advanced Operative Surgery.

OBITUARY.

BERTRAM EBB PARISH.

BORN 16TH NOVEMBER, 1895. DIED 29TH DECEMBER, 1914.

B. E. Parish stood in a fine succession. Brother after brother had won his place on the Foundation and done honour to the School. He, the youngest but one, won his scholarship in 1907, and, being yet well below the age, he held it for two years at the South Manchester School, where he took the form prize each year. Passing on to the big School in 1909, he took the Pritchard Art Prize in 1911 and passed his Matriculation (with distinction in Greek) in July, 1912. He was swimming captain of the Classical Transitus. In May of the past year, after less than a year in the Classical VI., he won the Grammar School Scholarship at Manchester University. He had one useful and happy term at the University, where he read for chemistry honours, and was an active member of the Chemical Society and Students' Christian Union. In the holidays he suffered from trouble in the ears, which had been with him through life. He seemed to be recovering, and was already free from pain when low fever set in, and on Tuesday, the last day but two of the old year, he passed away.

The sum of his life was quiet industry, faithfulness to duty, gentle affection in all relationships of life. The six young comrades of his bible class who bore his body to its last resting place in St. John's Churchyard, Irlam-o'-th'-Heights, were the symbol of the love in which he was held by all who knew him. And he was worthy of all love and trust.

Prof. Dixon writes :—"We shall miss him in the laboratory and class rooms as an eager student and a fine type of young manhood."

GODFREY SANDYS WÜNSCH, 1890—1914.

G. S. Wunsch was the third of four brothers, who are all O.M's, and all came forward at their country's call last September. Godfrey was in Canada at the time. He had settled down in Imperial Saskatchewan, and had there started a Scout troop, the first in the province. He was at school from January, 1902, to July, 1906. He was at the first M.G.S. Camp in Alderley Park, where he volunteered to do the cooking, and, in spite of some of the worst climatic conditions on record, made a great success of it. He was an ideal camper, for he was ingenious, and as full of resource as he was of frolic, always ready with his hands, and always willing for work. Dirt and he could not co-exist in the same establishment. As long as there was a speck on any camp utensil which elbowgrease could work off, he was at it. Next year he had a surprise up his sleeve, and turned up with a cooking tent in striped bunting, his own handiwork, which he made to fit our field boiler, and provided with handy shelves on either side, and hooks for utensils.

On leaving school he went into Mechanical Engineering, got busy on petrol engines, and was probably the first Grammar School owl to fly.

In Canada he had many jobs, and some of his adventures have been chronicled in Ulula, which has given extracts from his letters. The high regard in which he was held at Imperial was shown at the send-off. When he left to join the First Canadian Contingent there was a town's meeting in which the Scouts played a leading part, and Mr. Wunsch was presented with a Masonic ring and a gold watch fob as a parting gift and in recognition of what he had done for the boys of the town. The Army authorities soon discovered his mechanical gift and made him Armourer Sergeant-Major Instructor. He was busy during the voyage giving lectures to the men on the service weapon, the Ross rifle, and how to keep it in working order. Sir Chas. Ross, the inventor, heard him giving this instruction and spoke of him as one who would rise to a high position in the Ordnance. When they arrived in England, and had settled in to their quarters on Salisbury Plain, he got a few days' leave, and one morning turned up at School before prayers. He had travelled all night, and before getting out to see his people at Knutsford, he came in to see the old School. He came in to Junior Prayers, and said a few words to us, and then we gave him three cheers. It was the last we saw of him. He was taken ill with spino-meningitis, and lay for a week in the military hospital. Every day his comrades who came with him from Imperial walked over to the hospital, when their work was done, to enquire after him. On Tuesday, January 19th, he succumbed. He was buried with military honours at Bulford.

He died at his post. It would perhaps have seemed more heroic, if it was his fate to die, that he should have died on the field of battle. Those who knew his strong, unquestioning courage, his dash and readiness for sacrifice, felt sure that his was the spirit which would lift him at once "where most trade of danger ranged." He was one to take risks however great. But the qualities of a man come out as truly in suffering as in action; and in patient endurance of illness and calm acceptance of anticipated end, he showed bravery of another sort, and not less, perhaps more, of true faith and firmness. "He carried his love of all that was noble and pure into the smallest actions of his daily life, in a way which few men have strength of character to do." That is what was said of him by one of his comrades who knew him in the close touch of daily life.

The Stanley Houghton Memorial.

The October number of Ulula announced the intentions of the Committee formed to decide upon a fitting memorial to the late Stanley Houghton, and their plans have now been carried out, a "Stanley Houghton Scholarship" having been founded at the Grammar School to encourage the study of the drama. There is to be a special examination each year, dissociated from the already existing Shakespeare Scholarship examination, in a suitable dramatic subject selected by the High Master, and a scholarship of the annual value of £10 will be awarded on the results.

But Houghton was not merely of the School; he was of Manchester, and it was proper that Manchester should give his memory a civic recognition. On the afternoon of February 10th there was a simple ceremony in the temporary Reference Library, where Miss Horniman unveiled a tablet erected by the Committee to the memory of the dramatist. Mr. Paton, who was chairman of the Executive Committee, presided at the meeting; the Lord Mayor, Alderman Daniel McCabe, accepted the tablet on behalf of the City. Mr. Arthur Bouchier, the producer of three of Houghton's later plays in London, paid a graceful tribute to his friend, who had seemed, he thought, to be the destined successor to Sir James Barrie.

Bishop Welldon, unfortunately absent at York Convocation, sent a letter in which he hoped that Houghton's example would be a stimulus to his younger fellow-citizens during many years. A great city like Manchester did well in keeping the names of its distinguished citizens alive, and Stanley Houghton was pre-eminently a Lancashire and a Manchester man.

When the Reference Library at last finds a permanent home, the tablet will, of course, be removed to the new building.

The Christmas Entertainments.

The War, as it has affected everything else, affected the manner of our Christmas festivities. Instead of the usual Conversazione, gymnasium display, and the other "side shows," performances of the Concert and Play were given on Thursday, December the 17th, Monday the 21st, and Tuesday the 22nd. The entertainment to Hugh Oldham Lads' Club was held as usual on Saturday, December 19th. The cups, colours, and medals, usually given at the Conversazione, were presented after the first of the concerts on the Thursday, by the Lord Mayor. On this occasion the fact of the War was brought rather forcibly home to us, for no Old Mancunian colours at all were presented.

The Concert itself, as might have been expected, included a number of patriotic items—the English, French, Belgian and Russian National Anthems ; " The Viking Song " and " The Reveille. " The latter, of course, was of the greatest interest to us in that Bret Harte's stirring words have been set to music by Mr. Edward Isaacs (O.M.) Mr. Hemingway (O.M.) took the solo. The Glee Society acquitted itself well, as always, in the choruses, especially in the " Viking's Song," and the Orchestra did its usual good work in the instrumental pieces.

The Play.

Imbued as it is with stirring patriotism, Shakespeare's " Henry V " was an appropriate choice on the part of the Dramatic Society. It is an ambitious play to attempt, necessitating a high standard both of acting and staging. Mr. Garnett's previous efforts have always been so successful in both respects that, as this truly excellent production showed, there was no cause for apprehension. The stage-picture of the dawn breaking over the field of Agincourt was particularly effective. The part of Henry is one that very few could undertake, but the Society is fortunate in having two such able actors as D. R. V. Williams and R. St. V. B. Battersby. The former played with dignity and distinction combined with splendid elocution. The latter acted as understudy, and sustained the leading part on the Monday evening with every satisfaction, appearing at the other performances as the Herald. P. J. C. Thornley made a most amusing Pistol, getting the most out of the part, as did T. R. Chatfield as Fluellen. V. O. Almond as the French Gentleman, S. F. Clegg (the Dauphin), and P. H. Bloomer (the Boy), deserve mention for the spirit and vigour they infused into their representations.

Young Australia in Ancient Egypt.

Through the long tale of my unnumbered age,
Old as the oldest breed of men,
I turn in memory page or storied page,
And live the past again.

I mind me when my people bowed the knee
To gods forgotten, fain to raise
In Thebes and Memphis to the sacred Three Untiring meed of praise.

Then was the cycle of the sombre years
When Isis for Osiris dead,
Weeping a sister's plenitude of tears,
Could not be comforted.

I saw the kingly Pharaohs wax and wane ;
Their pomp is written on my sands ;
Behold it, tomb and pyramid and fane,
Rifled by alien hands.

Who were those bondmen low that were akin
To Joseph? Bitter was the woe
Their Moses wrought me, when he fain would win,
My Pharaoh's leave to go.

The Persian held me captive, and anon
Great Alexander came to seek Dominion with his men of Macedon ;
Thereafter I was Greek.

Through reign of Ptolemy on Ptolemy :
And one of them—could you have seen
Both Cæsar and the noble Antony
Thrall to that laughing queen !

These were of Rome, and Rome was soon to be
My mistress for a season, till
The hate of Mahmoud flooded over me,
And bent me to their will.

Still am I theirs, but for one little while
I was Napoleon's, to the day
When Nelson's seamen from a seagirt isle
Shattered his dream of sway.

And now, behold, the youngest nation sends
From far her youth and chivalry,
Her mother calls, and she responsive leads
In all true loyalty.

Where Sphinx and pyramid so long have gazed
Across my desert floor of sand,
The white tents of their sojourning are raised ;
In glittering line they stand.

I see their companies march to and fro,
Their limbs with youth and pride endued,
Envious I mark them : Would that I could know
Youth's ecstasy renewed !

Mine eyes have looked on centuries of war,
And none, methinks, more like than these,
The chosen manhood of that southern shore,
Their longed-for prize to seize.

What shall I take of them, or gain or loss ?
Will they be valiant to prevail ?
And will the Crescent yield before the Cross,
And Islam's warriors fail ?

I wonder, I am old and very old,
And change has ever been my fate,
What will be, will be, as the years unfold,
Patient I sit, and wait.

FRANCIS HERBERT JOHNSTONE (O.M.)

H. J. Roby.

This number of Ulula must not come out without some reminiscences of one so closely connected with this School—he took for a term the post of High Master, in addition to being a Governor—and one so distinguished and loveable as H. J. Roby. But a School magazine is no place for a mere catalogue or estimate of his many grounds of distinction. Such of our readers as would like to know some details of his many-sided work as Scholar, Schoolmaster, Educational Reformer, Administrator, Member of Parliament, Cotton Spinner, Professor of Jurisprudence, and supreme authority on such abstruse matters as Justinian's Digest, and Roman private law, may refer to the obituary notices that appeared at the time of his death in The Times of January 5th, and elsewhere. The present writer does not propose to go over any of that ground, but to give a few memory-snapshots, to show how at various periods of his long life he struck one who was a few years junior to him.

Roby was born in August, 1830, and was senior classic at Cambridge in 1853. He was already a Fellow of St. John's when I went up there in October, 1855. He was one of a brilliant group of young fellows, which included Courtney and J. B. Mayor, both still living, and J. E. B. Mayor and Newbery, who have passed away. They were reformers, and were our heroes. Of University Reform we knew nothing. But we thoroughly understood Roby's fight with the College Cook. The dinners in Hall, at 4 p.m., were very expensive, and unless one "sized," i.e., ran up a heavy bill for vegetables and pudding and cheese, they were meagre and ill-served, as well as abominably dear. The joints were placed at intervals on the long tables, and the men carved for themselves, for the most part execrably. I have seen a leg of mutton so mangled by the first comer—whom I could name—that no one who came after him could get a well-cut slice from it. College cooks were reported to make enormous profits. Rumour ran that when Trinity College wanted to borrow £60,000 to build the new courts on the other side of the street, the College cook offered the Master to lend him an even larger sum.

So a College cook was a worthy foe on whom Roby was to flesh his steel. He enjoyed the fight; he was floored again and again, but at last he mastered all the details, and won his victory. Undergraduates of all colleges at this day owe something to the dogged and good-tempered Reformer of sixty years ago.

He set on foot another reform of which we were less conscious. When Roby became a Fellow the gulf between Fellows and undergraduates was wide and unbridged. He was a pioneer in altering this relationship, out of sheer kindness of heart and appreciation of human values. He took notice of the reading men; thawed their shyness by his easy humorous manner; made them feel that they were not negligible nonentities, but that their prospects of success or failure were of moment to the College and to its dons. What this meant to the raw youths of the 'fifties it is hard for an undergraduate of to-day to imagine. We went up with very little of the social aplomb and ease of public school boys of to-day, and met with very little consideration. Roby changed the atmosphere; he set us on our feet, stimulated us intellectually—even those who were not in his lecture room—and by some genial art made us feel that we were not unworthy of the friendship of our seniors.

What was he like then? Curiously like what he was in later years: strongly and squarely built, fair in face and hair, with a large Socratic head as well as figure, and with a happy and often humorous expression.

After Cambridge days for some years we met rarely. Then I saw him in the fulness of his powers as Secretary to the Endowed Schools Enquiry Commission. This was a vast work. Its immediate results were contained in a thick Blue Book of Report, and some 15 to 20 volumes of evidence and appendices of all sorts. He was mainly responsible for editing it all, and for writing much of it. I used to hear of his work from Temple, then Headmaster of Rugby. At that time Roby was thoroughly enjoying "doing something that mattered," "making history," "laying foundations." Years afterwards, when I had occasion to consult him, I learned how strong was his grasp both of principles and details, and how sound his judgment.

In later years my wife and I used to visit him at Lancrigg, Grasmere. It was a delightful house, with a cottage nucleus of Wordsworthian associations, with larger rooms added to it; well outside the haunts of the British tourist; built on a terrace facing south, and looking at Silverhowe, with a steep slope of wood behind it reaching a long way up to the open fell. In front and at the sides were rose gardens, and walks through woods, some few hundred yards up the valley.

And Roby had the secret, the very genius, of hospitality. He faithfully kept his old friends, of every stage of his life, like Courtney and Bryce, now valued members of the House of Lords, and added new friends; and he chose his small house parties with a special view that his guests should enjoy one another. There was also in the neighbourhood a very pleasant coterie of friends. And he thoroughly enjoyed good breakfasts, lunches, dinners, and enjoyed not less his friends' enjoyment of them; fruit, wine, flowers—everything excellent. In cheese he was a connoisseur, of catholic tastes, liking fresh varieties so long as they were what he called "unsophisticated." If a Swiss valley had some speciality in that line, it was certain that he would enjoy a sample of it; but Gorgonzola was barred under his rule.

He had another virtue as a host. He let his visitors much alone, spending some hours each day in his roomy study, with well-chosen books on well-filled shelves. If a drive was desired, a carriage appeared from Grasmere; but for the most part, I think, his guests liked strolling, often with him, among his roses and azaleas, and in the paths among the woods, or reading in the pleasant and sunny sitting-rooms.

What he stood for in his social circle of Grasmere could not be fully estimated till one had seen the reliance on his advice and judgment which brought his neighbours so often to him for his counsel. He was an old man when he went to Lancrigg; but there were older inhabitants of the vale than he, and they learned to rely on him for help in difficulties. The same qualities which enabled Roby to make the undergraduates of St. John's realise that their youth was no bar to social consideration, made it possible for him to cheer old ladies—they were his specialité—by a similar appreciation of their inherent qualities. He was quite able to protect himself, however, from bores, and especially from canting or gushing bores, of whom he had an amusing horror.

In the evenings his delight was whist—good whist, if possible, but if that was impossible, then bad, even very bad; no bridge, no three-handed whist when only three were available, but the old short whist, sometimes with a dummy. His enjoyment was contagious, and overflowed. He enjoyed, with a decorous economy of joy, even the most fatal errors of his partner. I remember how, when by a fearful lapse his partner expended the last remaining trump in taking his trick and breaking his lead, he pursed up his lips and cast a resigned look at me, and when the tricks were announced only said “How delightful the unforeseen is in whist!”

I wish I could at all worthily recall his conversation. But I cannot. Of late years, I think, it was that of pleasant society with occasional shrewd comments. One remark I remember with which it may be not unsuitable to conclude an article in a school magazine. It was on the use of school libraries. “Have the best books of reference,” he said, “and invent ways of inducing or compelling boys to refer to them. It soon becomes a pleasure, and no education is more permanently valuable.”

Association Football.

FIRST ELEVEN v. ALUMNI A.F.C.

At Rochdale, on Saturday, December 12th. The afternoon was very stormy, and School had to face the wind. We were soon pressing, however, the left wing being prominent. Our opponents gradually improved, and Thornley was called upon to save several dangerous shots. The game was being evenly contested, and although, perhaps, we were having more of the play, our goal had some narrow escapes. Shortly before half-time a clever movement on our left resulted in Harris scoring. Half-time: School, 1; Alumni, 0.

In the first half our kicking had been, at times, very wild, owing to the wind, but on resuming with the elements in our favour, we were immediately aggressive, and it was not long before Marquis put us further ahead. Play was practically confined to our opponents' half, but we only succeeded in scoring once again, through Haygarth. In the last fifteen minutes the game was played in semi-darkness, and the lighted lamps surrounding the field lent a weird effect to the game, which ended in an almost impossible light, with School easy winners. Result:

School, 3; Alumni A.F.C. 0.

Team: Thornley; Shorrocks and Swann; Frankenberg, Rhodes, and Harrison; Jones, Haygarth, Harris, Marquis, and Bowden.

FIRST ELEVEN v. HUGH OLDHAM LADS' CLUB.

At Newton Heath, on Saturday, December 19th. This interesting fixture, unfortunately, was to some extent spoiled by the wretched weather. For quite half the time a snowstorm was raging. We were early aggressive, and Marquis and Harris scored two good goals in quick succession. Hugh Oldham improved ere long, but our defence prevailed, and before the half closed Marquis added another goal. Half-time: School, 3; Hugh Oldham, 0. In the second half, although we re-arranged our team somewhat, we still continued to overplay our opponents, but could only manage to add one other goal, Harris scoring from a centre from the right wing. The Hugh Oldham team, which was considerably weakened by the call of King and Country, struggled gamely but ineffectually. Result:

School, 4; Hugh Oldham, 0.

Team: Thornley; Shorrocks and Swann; Frankenberg, Rhodes, and Harrison; Jones, Haygarth, Harris, Marquis, and Bowden.

FIRST ELEVEN v. LIVERPOOL INSTITUTE.

At the Cliff, on Saturday, January 23rd. Despite the fact that the ground was in a terrible condition, the game proved very interesting. Play opened at a good pace and, for the most part, was confined to mid-field. Neither set of forwards, although their combination was quite good, were ever really dangerous, and an even first half closed with no score. In the second half School were decidedly the better team, the outstanding feature being the brilliant display of the Liverpool goalkeeper, who undoubtedly saved his side from a severe defeat. Time and again the three inside forwards bombarded the goal, but only once was he beaten, Marquis heading through from a corner kick some fifteen minutes from the close. Frankenberg and Rhodes (A.) were the pick of the team, which, on the whole, performed quite creditably. Result:

School, 1; Liverpool Institute, 0.

Team: Rhodes (H. G.); Shorrocks and Swann; Frankenberg, Rhodes (A.), and Orr; Williams (W. R.), Haygarth, Harris, Marquis, and Bowden.

FIRST ELEVEN v. MACCLESFIELD GRAMMAR SCHOOL.

At Macclesfield on Saturday, January 30th. Owing to a misunderstanding we had only ten men. Play for some time was of a rather ragged description, but a few minutes before half-time Bowden dashed through and opened the scoring. This success infused some life into the game, and Macclesfield were fortunate to be only one goal in arrear at half-time. On resuming we were soon attacking, and some fifteen minutes after the interval Haygarth increased our lead, and shortly before time the same player put School further ahead. School had a weak team, and the game was neither interesting nor scientific, School winning fairly comfortably. Frankenberg, at outside right, made good use of his opportunities, but as a team we did not give an exactly brilliant display. Result :

School, 3; Macclesfield, 0.

Team : Rhodes (A. G.); Shorrocks and Swann; Orr, Rhodes (A.), and Harrison; Frenkenberg, Haygarth, Marquis and Bowden.

FIRST ELEVEN v. BURY GRAMMAR SCHOOL.

At Bury, on Wednesday, February 3rd. Bury wasted no time at the start, and at the end of ten minutes' play were two goals ahead. After this sensational opening School began to settle down, but a strong cross wind veering slightly in Bury's favour rendered accurate marksmanship extremely difficult, and at half-time the score was unaltered. Immediately on changing ends School took up the attack, and playing, under the conditions, excellent football, were "all over" the Bury team. Twenty minutes after the interval Haygarth rushed the ball into the net and henceforward the game developed in intensity. Time and again School simply bombarded the Bury goal, a terrific shot by Harris only missed by inches; once Bowden struck the upright with a brilliant effort, and twice Haygarth hit the cross-bar. In fact, School could do everything but score. Bury, reduced in the last few minutes to ten men, stuck grimly to their lead, and time came at last with School decidedly unfortunate losers. School certainly did not lose through want of determination, and one has nothing but praise for the whole team. The defence, strangely enough, was the least worked of the whole team, and except for the opening fiasco, easily held in check the occasional Bury attacks. Result :

School, 1; Bury, 2.

Team : Rhodes (H. G.); Shorrocks and Swann; Frankenberg, Rhodes (A.), and Harrison; Williams, Haygarth, Harris, Marquis, and Bowden.

First team Football colours were awarded to L. Swann (M.T.a), J. Harrison (Mod. 6), J. P. Bowden (Mod. 6), and P. J. C. Thornley (Rβ).

Second Team Badges were awarded to:—Marquis (IVa), Shorrocks (Sc.Tr.), A. J. B. Orr (Cl.v.), Williams (Ra), D. R. V. Williams (Cl. vi.), H. P. Schneider (Cl.Tr.), Shorrocks (M.R.), P. B. Wood (Cl.Tr.), and Prestwich (5c).

Harriers.

On January 23rd we had an ordinary run from the Sharston tea rooms. Mr. Batley took charge, and the hares were Bracewell, Gmelin, and E. J. Martin.

On January 30th we had a run with the Old Mancunians from Sale Preparatory School, the hares being K. L. P. Martin, E. J. Martin, and Selby (O.M.).

On February 6th the members of the Sale Harriers Club having enlisted, we had to have an ordinary run from the Cliff. The weather was almost ideal. The hares were :—H. Jones, Standring and R. Worthington.

On February 13th we had a run from North Manchester School. The cold weather greatly whetted our appetites for the very excellent tea which Mr. Dennis afterwards gave us. Later on we had an impromptu but enjoyable concert. The trail was rendered somewhat obscure owing to the wind blowing it about. The hares were Gmelin and R. Worthington.

WHY THE NATIONS ARE AT WAR

THE CAUSES AND ISSUES OF THE GREAT CONFLICT

By CHARLES MORRIS & LAWRENCE H. DAWSON

Profusely Illustrated with Maps and Illustrations. Size $9\frac{1}{4} \times 6\frac{1}{2}$ in., 480 pages, 5s. net.

A Graphic Story of the Nations Involved, their History and Former Wars, their Rulers and Leaders, their Armies and Navies, their Resources, the Reasons for Conflict, and the Issues at Stake.

This book gives an extremely interesting review of the History of Europe since the French Revolution of 1789, especially in relation to the political developments which have led to the Great War.

THE SOLDIER'S WORD AND PHRASE BOOK.

In English, French, and German. Pocket size, oblong, $5 \times 3\frac{1}{2}$ in., 96 pages. Waterproof binding, 6d. net.; limp leather, 1/- net.

This valuable little book has been built up through actual experience with soldiers in the classroom by a small Committee of Modern Language experts. The pronunciation of every word is given, and also a full alphabetical vocabulary.

A HISTORY OF THE ANCIENT WORLD.

By HUTTON WEBSTER, Professor in the University of Nebraska. Edited for use in English Schools by J. B. CHAPMAN, M.A. 230 Illustrations and 55 Maps. Demy 8vo, 704 pages, 6/- net.

The author has made a new and original arrangement of the material of Ancient History. The point of view is that of human life. The social, industrial, and commercial life of the Ancients is given with exceptional fullness. Their art, literature, and religion are not neglected, while political events and constitutional development receive all needed attention. The results of modern archaeological discoveries are fully treated. An attractive feature is the series of character-sketches of leading personages.
