JULY.

1916.

Occasional and O.M.A. Notes.

Break-up Monday, July 31st.

School re-opens Thursday, September 14th.

As already announced, the prizes and certificates will be distributed by Vice-Chancellor Sir Henry Miers, on July 31st. The ceremony will begin at 2-30 p.m.

The Annual Meeting of the O.M.A. is fixed for Friday, November 10th. Will members kindly make a note of this? Dr. Mumford has kindly consented to give a lecture, illustrated by slides, on the history of the School. Further particulars will be announced in due course.

Mr. Alfred Wood's Ulula prize is awarded to E. E. Watson (M.T.b).

Mr. E. S. Powell, of Davenport, in memory of his son Arthur, who died in Gallipoli, has kindly presented a sum of money to the School to provide a bursary for a boy in need of such assistance.

The Rev. Jonathan Evans, of Penarth, late of Rochdale, has founded an Emrys and Mervyn Evans memorial scholarship at the School, confined to Rochdale boys and their descendants. The two brothers are commemorated with a tablet in the lower corridor.

An O.M. brings the following story from Dublin:—An old woman was summoned for damaging trees by tearing the branches off. She was highly indignant, and said "Why, it's martial law, isn't it? I thought we could do what we liked."

We note with pleasure that the Rev. C. A. Alington, Headmaster of Shrewsbury, who preached the Founder's Day sermon for us a few weeks ago, has been appointed Headmaster of Eton.

Mr. George Jennison has kindly sent us from Belle Vue a fine specimen of a young male Himalayan Bear (ursus tibetanus or torquatus). It was one of a pair of cubs captured at Jubbulpore. This bear, when full grown, is said to attack ponies and cattle. The companion cub may still be seen in Cage 181 at Belle Vue. By a curious and welcome coincidence, almost at the same time we hear from Mr. Fred G. Taylor (O.M.), who is at present at Kuala Lumpur, in the Malay Peninsula, that he is sending us a mounted specimen of the Malayan Honey-Bear (ursus malayanus). The latest arrival is a specimen of one of the Amazon parrots (chrysotis festiva), with red back and wing coverts of a lovely dark blue.

We publish, at the end of this number, the additional list of O.M.A. members, since the last issue.

Contributions, other than those relating to the O.M.A., will be received by Mr. C. L. Barnes, at the School.

N.B.—Will members please note that subscriptions should be paid to Mr. FRED ETCHELLS, Assistant Secretary, at the School, and that changes of address should be notified (also to Mr. ETCHELLS) without delay.

O.M. Chronicle.

Mr. Chas. Hughes, M.A., has written the chapter on "Travel by Land" for "Shakespeare's England," published by the Clarendon Press, and edited by Sir Walter Raleigh.

Mr. Harold Brighthouse (O.M.) has scored a great success with "Hobson's Choice," which has been produced at the Apollo

Theatre in London, but some time previously in the States. A critic writes of it as a play "so sincere, so human, so beautiful in sentiment and so rich in humour, that merely to thank him for it were surely not adequate recognition of the full indebtedness of the theatre-goer."

Our best congratulations to Dr. A. Parker, who has been made a D.Sc. of Birmingham University for researches carried out mainly on "gaseous explosions, with a view to their prevention in coal mines." These have been published during the last few years in the Transactions of the Chemical Society and the Philosophical Magazine. Dr. Parker was at the School from 1903 to 1908, and was in Mr. Florian's form (MTa) when he left. He took a 1st honours in chemistry at Victoria in 1912, was a graduate scholar, 1912-13, M.Sc. by research, 1913, Beyer Fellow, 1913-14. He is now chemist-inspector of high explosives for Birmingham area, and assistant lecturer and demonstrator in Chemistry at Birmingham University. He was in the O.M.A. Harriers Section, 1910-14, and won his colours 1912-13 and 1913-14.

Honours List.

Parker, A., Degree of D.Sc., Birmingham University.

 McPhail, P., Graduate Scholarship in Philosophy, Manchester University.
 Boyarsky, L., Senior Secondary School Scholarship, Manchester Education Committee.
 Fray, J. H., Preliminary Examination, Institute of Chartered Accountants.

The War.

Our list of dead this month is terribly heavy, and scarcely a day passes without adding to the number. We observe with pride, however, that O.M.'s have shared to the full the commendations recently passed on the Lancashire Fusiliers and other local regiments, who have suffered so severely in the great British offensive. There are no less than twenty-two in the following roll, exclusive of missing and wounded.

Correction: Second Lieut. H. L. Tate was killed by a shell, while on duty as forward observation officer, somewhere near Ploegsteart. He was 25 years of age, and obtained his commission in October, 1914, not 1915, as stated in last Ulula; nor was he invalided home two months later.

Pte. C. F. Davies, R.A.M.C. (Transport Section), has now, we are glad to hear, recovered from wounds received during the Dublin Rebellion.

KILLED.

Second Lieut. L. H. Barber, 6th Bn. Manchester Regiment, previously reported missing, is now reported killed in action.

Second Lieut. T. H. S. Bullough, Loyal N. Lancs. Fusiliers, was killed on July 8th. He took his 1st M.B. last year at Victoria and obtained a commission shortly afterwards. He was in his 20th year. He played for our 1st at football and cricket, upholding worthily the traditions of his brothers who were before him.

Lance-Sergeant G. E. Burgess, Manchester Regiment, is reported killed.

Lieut. H. Whittaker Coombs, 18th Northumberland Fusiliers, died of wounds on July 2nd. He was a mathematical scholar of C.C.C., Oxford, and took a 2nd class in the Finals. He played for our 1st at cricket, and was captain of the College cricket team.

Second Lieut. Cyril Crossley, Royal Welsh Fusiliers, killed in action, was secretary to the Salford and District Scout Association.

Lieut. W. E. Gomersall, reported killed in action, was articled with Messrs. Morris Gregory & Co., Chartered Accountants. He enlisted in the P.S. Battalion on the outbreak of war. A former master of F.F.P. writes :

" I remember W. Gomersall when he was a small boy in the lowest form, called F.F.P., and I always think of him as I think of Peter Pan. I know, of course, that Gomersall moved up the School, and left, and went to business, as we call it ; but I don't think he ever grew up, in the sense of becoming worldly. I never think of him as being brilliant at cricket or football or work ; he lives in my memory because he was so genuine and simple-hearted."

A former chum writes :

" Another thing always sticks in my memory. It was the mile race in the School Sports at Fallowfield. One small tub of a boy was far behind the rest. When the race was won he was still plodding on and was approaching the straight, but was upset by a dog. He got up, continued the mile, and finished his job. There was good stuff in that chap. It was Willie Gomersall ; and, though he didn't know it, he taught me a lot when we were in F.F.P. together."

Captain Cowan, the only officer left after the assault, writes :

" He led his platoon through an intense barrage of fire to the second objective of the Battalion in the big attack. We were thinned almost to nothing at that point, and our final objective had still to be won in the face of two machine guns. He didn't hesitate a moment, but jumped forward with a handful of men to do or die. He died a glorious death. It was quick and merciful. His lead was followed and the final objective was taken, but with appalling loss ; 17 officers and 500 N.C.O.'s and men were killed and wounded in the 22nd. There was a mere handful to hold the ground we had won, but it was held."

Lance-Corporal Athol J. Hay, K.O.R. Lancaster Regiment, died of wounds. He was one of our aboriginal scouts, an active member of Mr. Hope's troop. He was on the staff of Rossall School.

Pte. Ronald W. Hill, Royal Fusiliers, killed in action, was studying for the Bar, and was in the employ of the Stockport Guardians. He lived at Knutsford and came to us from King's School, Chester.

Capt. J. A. Hislop, 4th City Bn. Manchester Regiment, died on July 8th, after an operation for gastritis. He was a B.A. of Oriel College, Oxford, rowed in the College eight, and won his oar. He obtained a commission in September, 1914. He became senior captain of his Company in one of the Service Battalions of the Manchester Regiment.

Pte. A. D. Hughes, of the 20th P.S. Bn. Royal Fusiliers, the son of Mr. Edward Hughes, Old Market Place, Altrincham, was wounded in the early morning of the 23rd. The enemy exploded a large mine, and followed up with a severe bombardment. He was hit by a shell, was carried to a hospital but never recovered consciousness. "It is a great loss to us all," writes his Lieutenant; "he was always bright and cheerful, and willing to do his duty, and a ready volunteer for any task that entailed risk."

Second Lieutenant Albert Ireland, R.F.A., was the son of H. Ireland, Brooklyn Avenue, Flixton, and attended the Grammar School from September, 1907, to July, 1910. He was on the Modern side. After leaving School he worked for the Senior Cambridge local, and passed in December, 1914. He then got into Woolwich and was gazetted 2nd Lieut., R.F.A., Oct. 27th, 1915. He had been out at the front since January, and practically in the firing line all the time. His commander wrote of him on his first leave: "He has shown a keenness in his work and capacity for really hard grind which I have never seen equalled in a beginner. He has also shown extraordinary aptitude for learning; from a social point of view he is of the greatest assistance, very quiet in his general behaviour (so different from some), and always cheerful." He was brought into hospital, and all that was possible was done to make him strong enough for an operation, but he never rallied.

Second Lieutenant Francis Latimer, Manchester Regiment, killed in action, was in the Manchester Overseers' office, and had served four years with the 6th Manchester Territorials. He had been in France since March 8th, and was bombing officer for his company.

Lieut. J. L. Mellor, R.F.A., killed in action on July 1st, was invalided home from the Dardanelles last year. He enlisted in August, 1914, and was promoted Sergeant, afterwards obtaining a commission. He was 27 years of age, and, according to his Captain, "set a fine example to all about him."

Lieut. Leslie Milbourne, 7th Bn. Loyal N. Lancs. Regiment, died of wounds, having been shot through the face and neck. He was a B.Comm. of Victoria, and obtained his colours for Rugby at Manchester University.

Pte. H. V. Moores, 2nd City Bn. Manchester Regiment, was home on furlough a few weeks ago, and was killed by a shell within four days of leaving Manchester. He was in the Scottish Amicable Insurance Office, and was a keen lacrosse player.

Pte. C. F. T. Price, Manchester Regiment, was killed on June 15th by a bullet through the head.

Corporal Harold Roscoe, Royal Engineers, killed in action on 27th June last, in France. His parents live at 23, Bowker Street, Higher Broughton. He was educated at M.G.S., joined the Public School Battalion, Royal Fusiliers, and was one of the first batch that left Manchester for Epsom early in September, 1914. He was transferred to the Royal Engineers in July next, being by profession a technical chemist, and was posted immediately to the front. His Captain writes: "The front line was being very heavily bombarded, and your son was chosen to take the Major and myself along, as being one of the coolest and most competent men in the section."

Pte. J. G. Rowlinson, 6th Bn. Manchester Regiment, was wounded in Gallipoli, but is now reported killed in action on August 7th, 1915.

Second Lieut. Ian A. Sawers Scott came to us from the South Manchester School and afterwards went to Fettes. His brother, 2nd Lieut. N. Sawers Scott, was killed last year.

The youngest son of Dr. Sawers Scott, of Withington, he was at South Manchester School and from there won a Scholarship at Fettes College, Edinburgh. He was still a boy at School and had won a University Scholarship when his brother Norman was killed at Hill 60. He at once applied for a commission in his brother's regiment, the King's Own Scottish Borderers, and entered the Manchester University O.T.C. "He was killed," says his Colonel, "early on the morning of 1st July while gallantly leading his platoon in an attack." He was just 19 years of age. On his 19th birthday he applied for a commission in the regular army, having come to the conclusion that it was the only life he cared for. He was for some weeks in Egypt, before bringing a contingent, of which he was in sole charge, from there to the French front. His one desire after Norman's death was to do as he had done, and, if necessary, to die as he had done.

Corporal H. M. Smith, 6th Bn. Manchester Regiment, previously reported missing in Gallipoli, is now reported killed in action on June 5th, 1915.

Pte. Percy J. Wade, Manchester Regiment, is reported killed at Montauban. He was the eldest son of the Headmaster of Beever Street School, Oldham, J.P. for the borough of Middleton. He won his scholarship at the Grammar School at the age of 10. On leaving he was articled to the Town Clerk of Middleton, and Rugby Union team, and played cricket for Middleton. He joined the Manchester "Pals" in September, 1914. On several occasions he was offered a commission, but declined them all. "I want to do my duty," he said, "not to get into the limelight." He fell at Montauban on July 6th, with his face to the foe. While he was in the trenches the Town Clerk of Middleton died, and there was a strong feeling that Mr. Wade should have been appointed. He was an ideal public servant—cool, considerate, and conciliatory. He was hearty in work and in play; his fairness of mind, strength of character, and unfailing courtesy won him many friends and the respect of all.

WOUNDED.

Pte. Eric Barnes, 18th Bn. R.F., is in the Wharnccliffe Military Hospital, Sheffield, suffering from wounds in the shoulder and leg. He was in the service of the Chamber of Commerce. His father, the late Mr. Herbert Barnes, was Assistant Receiver at the School and organist of All Saints, Newton Heath.

Capt. C. H. Crawshaw, K.O.S.B., is in Lady Wimborne's Hospital, Roehampton. He won a Military Cross for organising and leading an attack under heavy artillery fire and displaying great skill and courage therein. He also received a King's Coronation medal for raising and training new battalions. He was reading for classical honours at Victoria and had a commission in the O.T.C. special reserve of officers.

Pte. Cecil Goldschmidt, R.F., has been on active service since last November. He is recovering from shrapnel wounds in a hospital in the south of England. He has been on active service since last November.

Pte. B. C. Mead, Norfolk Regiment, was wounded in a charge on July 1st.

Lieut. J. F. Prince, Manchester Regiment, suffering from shell shock, is in a hospital in London.

Capt. Eric Robertson, 1st Bn. K.O.S.B., who has recently been promoted from Lieut., is wounded for the third time.

Pte. L. Samuels, Manchester Regiment, now wounded for the second time, was a student of medicine at Victoria. He is in hospital at Cheltenham.

Pte. W. M. Shearer, 2nd Bn. Manchester Regiment, has had a severe gunshot wound in the thigh, but is recovering in the base hospital at Rouen.

Lance-Corporal F. C. Smith is reported wounded.

Second Lieut. W. E. C. Sturman is in a French hospital.

Second Lieut. W. G. Swain, Manchester Regiment, who was transferred, with a commission, to the Manchesters in April, 1915, is reported wounded.

Lieut. L. E. Woodard, 16th Bn. Manchester Regiment, is in the Wilson Hospital at Reading suffering from bullet wounds in the back and neck. He distinguished himself a few years ago by swimming from the North to the South Pier at Blackpool.

Capt. S. E. Woollam, Manchester Regiment, was wounded on July 1st. He was invalided home last December but recovered, and went out again. He was Hon. Treasurer of the Lancashire and Cheshire Football Association and captain of the Whalley Range Club.

* * * * *

The following was received too late for insertion in its proper place:—

Sergt. J. G. Yuill, Manchester Regiment (killed), was with a Lewis machine gun detachment, and was promoted for good work in the early part of the British offensive. He was captain of the Northern Nomads, and played with Manchester City, Oldham Athletic, and Cheshire clubs in Association inter-county games.

MISSING.

Lieut. E. Hampson, Lancashire Fusiliers, reported missing, was a member of the O.T.C. and left School to go to the Salford Technical School. His brother, Stuart, is Captain and Adjutant of a Lancashire Fusilier Battalion.

Capt. Geoffrey Y. Heald, Lancashire Fusiliers, was promoted from Lieut. only a few weeks ago for gallantly capturing German prisoners. He was on the actuarial staff of the Refuge Insurance Co.

Second Lieut. R. N. Lodge, Lancashire Fusiliers, son of Mr. C. S. Lodge, who has been on the School staff since last September, is reported missing since July 6th. He is a nephew of Sir Oliver Lodge, and was in the employ of the General Electric Co. He had been at the front for about two months.

Lieut. J. M. Oliver, Manchester Regiment, missing, is believed to have been killed on July 7th. He went from the School to C.C.C., Oxford, and took honours in law. He was a partner in the firm of Tatham, Worthington & Co., Solicitors, Manchester, and took a great interest in the Boy Scout movement.

Lieut. H. F. Robinson, Lancashire Fusiliers, was in the University O.T.C. and obtained a commission in 1914. Reported missing on July 6th.

Lieut. C. H. Wright, Lancashire Fusiliers, missing, left the School to go to Rossall, after which he was with the firm of G. Fraser & Sons, Portland Street.

The School Concert.

The Concert on April 14th was in part a celebration of the Sterndale Bennett Centenary, and several selections from his works were given, including "The Hawthorn in the Glade" trio from the "May Queen." The rest of the music was chosen from a wide field. The Chorus sang with great confidence throughout, reaching a climax in Coleridge Taylor's setting of "Drake's Drum." The Orchestra played extremely well, especially in the Mendelssohn Concerto, Mr. W. Sever (O.M.) taking the pianoforte solo. The chief vocalists were Mr. Fred Ashby, Mr. J. H. Halsall, Seed, Walton, Vaughan, and Corbishley. J. B. Johnson gave two violin solos, and A. H. Warr played two Sterndale Bennett pianoforte pieces. Mr. Newbould conducted the Chorus, and Mr. J. H. Wills, A.R.M.C.M., the Orchestra. Our best thanks are due to the ladies and gentlemen who assisted in the performance. There was a large and appreciative audience.

Letters from the Front.

The following letter has been crowded out for some time, but we print it as evidence of the loyalty of the Indians. It is from a late Captain of the School, Harold Graham :

"Am on a hospital ship bound for India. We have just crossed the bar of the Shat-el-Arab, and must be somewhere off Bunder-Abbas or thereabouts. I was hit in the right knee and right calf in an attack on a Turkish trench on 24th April. Really by then we had despaired of relieving Kut, though we did not know what exactly was the state of affairs. It was a brigade show merely to straighten out the line on the extreme flank of our position on the right bank of the Tigris, opposite the Es-Sinn position of the Turks. I was ordered to take up my company, the 4th Co. of the 9th Gurkhas, to support the Highland Light Infantry in the attack. I was hit in the final rush about 70 or 80 yards from the Turkish front trench. We eventually rushed both lines of the Turks' position, luckily for me, as I was lying out in the open unable to go backwards or forwards. My Gurkha orderly saved my life crawling up when the fire was hottest. He lay down alongside me, and digging underneath me with his kukri, so that I sank in a little, threw up the soil for a bit of head cover. I got a bullet through the heel of my boot and another tore my shorts, but the wee hole was just enough to save me. The orderly was badly hit in the shoulder, but when the men had rushed the trenches things quietened down, and I crawled back into a nullah, and soon was off on a stretcher.

"Here I am off to India, and feeling as fit as could be, though my leg will be some time mending. There's a sub. of the Highland Light Infantry lying next to me with his thigh absolutely smashed by an Arab bullet; they are .450 to .500 soft-nosed, mushrooming when they hit, making a horrible wound. The Turkish bullet is most merciful, making a very small clean hole. Everyone here speaks in the highest terms of the Turk as a fighting man and a sportsman. The Arab is a jackal,—a treacherous hound to kill whom is doing a deed praiseworthy in the eyes of God and man. The Ninth Gurkhas "saw their dead" like the Mavericks in Kipling, when the Arabs had finished with them, but only once did they get in with the kukri. I was only four days actually in the firing line, being six weeks marching up the Tigris with a small column."

The next shows the joys of a telephone repairer in bad weather:

"My work is to look after the telephone lines from battalion headquarters to the trenches. This is no mean job, for besides a main line to each company, there are two spare lines and ladders connecting them, and interference lines, and earth lines, and goodness knows what! I start; first there are the connections in the signal station. These must be looked after, and then I begin to trace the wires. Most of these lines run well in sight of the Germans, and it is with the greatest pleasure that I lay myself down in some hollow place, filled with mud and water, to escape attention. At length I reach the comparative safety of the communication trench, and here, being a fairly strong swimmer, I manage to make my way through several feet of mud, water, empty bully beef tins, etc., as far as the first post. I find a sorry state of affairs here. The signallers have already vacated two dug-outs, and the third, which they are now in, is already rapidly filling with water. It is now two feet deep, and in about a couple of hours will be full. I wade inside and find that everything is bumping against me or I against it. I find the operator is seated on a plank, with his instrument on his knees, and his bare feet dangling in the water. They are going to use the pumps soon, but if they don't hurry I am afraid that we shall have to include 'drowned' among our casualties. After cheering them up a bit I pass on, all the time taking notice that the wires are not cut or bored by bullets or the shovels of working parties. I visit the remaining stations, which I find almost as bad as the first, and incidentally hear the latest rumours, for the trenches are the place for rumours, and all the time questions like the following are being hurled at my head :—‘ When are you going on pass? ’ ‘ Is peace proclaimed? ’ ‘ Is it true that London is still on the Thames? ’ Or, ‘ Have the Russians really captured another billion men? ’ etc.

“ After having been round I return to headquarters by a shorter and less devious route. I arrive back about three o’clock and after dinner sit down for a short rest. I am not down long before an orderly reports that communication is broken between us and the right company, and off I start again through the mud, water, jam and bully beef tins, all the way and yet no break. The trench office is quite correct, and still no communication. I start back along the wire, but still fail to find the break, and at last go into the signal office at my end and there find, to my amazement, that it is there that the trouble lies. Some careless person has knocked one of the switches out and naturally our ’phone is simply running into the wall. I repair the damage, and all is well except for some remarks of mine about having all that bother for nothing.”

An Ode to Shakespeare.

(1616—1916.)

Master of song, Lord of the golden lyre,
 I see thee, splendid vision, aureoled
 In all Apollo’s sunset fire
 Of burning red and gold.
 And while mine eyes entranced behold,
 A strain of music trembles from the spheres,
 And haunting fragments, cadences of song,
 Come stealing forth from out the mist of years.
 Lo, where the singing hosts of heaven throng!
 There, in lone grandeur, radiant and sublime,
 Behold the bard whose songs have thrilled the vaults
 of space and time!

Divinest bard!
 What though the song-libation we outpour,
 And thread the rhythmic dance?
 Albeit we adore,
 Can we the meed of praise award,
 Or yet one whit thy fame enhance?
 Enough, let us be mute!
 High Heaven rings for ever with thy song,
 And age to age thy deathless praise shall bruit!

Great singer of the race of man,
What spirit tuned thy lyre and filled thy soul with song?

Methinks or ere this world began
Thou wandered'st wondrous shores along
In realms that mortal's fancy cannot reach.

The music of the laughing spray,
The billows thundering on the beach,
The voices of the storm, all these
Thou didst enweave into thy lay,
The while thine accents travelled o'er the sheen of summer seas.

Song-rhapsodies of birds, and breezes soft,
Rustling in the grass,
Or whispering 'mid the leaves aloft,
None suffered'st thou to pass
But thou didst gain some music for thine own.

Thine was the golden rhyme,
The stately movement and the diction grand;
As ocean-rollers ride towards the land,
And break, each after each,
In grand pulsating rhythm on the beach,
So did thy solemn measures flow sublime.
Winds of the forest taught thee to caress
The trembling lyre, and draw such tender tone
Therefrom, as thou could'st ease the stress
Of sorrow from the sinking heart,
And dreamy slumbers to the raging sea impart.

Oh, I have stood upon a windy rise
Amid great hills, the elder sons of time,
Leaping in peerless grandeur to the skies,
Or lifting hoary heads sublime
To kiss the trembling stars;
I've loved the twilight when the vale it fills
With exhalations of the hidden flowers;
In misty ghostlike hours
I've trod Helvellyn's breast, caught sudden sight—
The trailing curtain of the mist withdrawn—
Of slopes agleam, and mountain ghylls
Sparkling and flashing in the gracious light;
And songs of birds have waked me to the purple pomp of dawn.

At such times strange and sudden passions rise
 And swell within my breast.
 How soon they die ! But even in thine eyes
 High vision shines, and in thy singing, drest
 In witchery of words and images as fair
 As flowers that bloom in heaven, are shrined
 Noble and lovely thoughts and passions rare
 That speak of constant dreams, and bind
 Our spirits with such potent charms
 That our thoughts rise exalted, each breast warms
 With deeper feelings and our higher selves prevail
 As in the night made splendid by th'impassioned nightingale.

What are those shapes a-floating dim
 And wreathing round his radiant form?
 Like swallows o'er a lake, his fingers skim
 Across the lyre-strings, and transform
 The mystic shapes to quickened life.
 Lo, bright-eyed joy, and wailing grief distraught,
 And passions wan, and bloody strife,
 And bitter jealousy and envious thought
 With hard and glittering eyes !
 Lo, shining hope, and love all-conquering,
 And all the splendid dreams that rise
 Where'er the prince of poesy doth raise his voice and sing !

The glorious colours fade, the vision dies,
 The music to a tender whispering falls :
 Alas ! we peer with yearning eyes,
 We may no longer look beyond the veil !
 Yet still a voice across the distance calls—
 Blest hope, now shall our songs resound, " All hail !"
 Peal forth, ye myriad stars, your voice,
 And all ye isles, rejoice, rejoice !
 For lo ! his spirit with us bides and sings
 While epochs hurtle through eternity !
 Stay, mortals ! twine ye laurels, hearken ye,
 Amid the fevered fret of things
 Bow down in humble worship, and adore
 The greatest Seer and Bard there was, or shall be evermore !

Scripture Union.

Meetings have been held regularly on Tuesdays and Fridays during the past term, but the average attendance (45) cannot be called satisfactory when we have 180 odd members; we still have room in the Lecture Theatre for all the surplus population of the corridors. As is well known, bright addresses are given each week by masters at the School and local clergymen, while occasionally we have visits from foreign missionaries. For these addresses we are indebted to the following gentlemen:—Rev. R. Reid, Rev. Leyton Richards, Rev. A. Giles, Rev. J. J. Wilson, Rev. J. Bamber, Rev. J. G. Hayes, Rev. S. N. Perry, Rev. W. Lee, Rev. A. Botterill, Rev. F. W. Cooper, Rev. A. W. Dunstan, Rev. A. G. Fox, C. Douglas Green, Esq., of Chandpuri, India, and Messrs. Chatterton, Hartley, Madden, and Balmforth. The Secretary wishes it to be known that if anybody is interested in the Leper Mission, of which Mr. C. Green spoke, he will be pleased to give them more literature descriptive of the work out there, on application.

On June 23rd a meeting was held at which the following officers were appointed for the ensuing year:—President, The High Master; Vice-Presidents, Mr. H. D. B. Harford, B.A., Mr. S. B. Hartley, B.A., Mr. W. H. Madden, B.A.; Secretary, N. H. Snaith (M.vi.); Treasurer, W. G. Southern (C.v.); Magazine Secretary, H. W. Smith (5b). It is hoped that there will be an increased interest in the work of the Union.

During the war terminal reports only will be issued.

Alderley Camp.

In spite of war conditions, the camp was held as usual, though during the first week the weather was bad. Our chief regret was police restrictions about camp-fires. The Receiver was energetic in the bathing department, and, of course, none of us escaped the appellation "bloomin' object," the Doc.'s well-worn war-cry. Mr. Hartley favoured us with songs, while Mr. Green kept his post in front of "Mrs. Sam." (For the benefit of outsiders, who are always mystified by this reference, we may explain once for all that she consumes fuel very rapidly.) Not even on parents' day did the weather favour us, and six members took their departure rather prematurely, convinced that they would require wading boots if they stayed on. However, the last few days turned out better, and a succession of delightful marches followed. Mr. Green deserves our best thanks for his unremitting devotion to a good cause.

"Cyttiau Gwyddelod" at Llangynog.

"Cyttiau Gwyddelod" is the name given by the Welsh people to the huts of the Goidels, the remains of which are found in several localities among the Welsh hills. One of these Goidel villages occurs on Craig Rhiwarth, just above the site of the M.G.S. camp at Cwm Orog, Llangynog. Nine of these circles—stone circles being all that remain of the huts—were measured in April, 1915, by Glenn Handley (Cl. vi.), who wrote a short report on their strategic position, an extract from which is reprinted in Mr. Bruton's book for Llangynog campers, together with a diagram giving dimensions.

A few careful measurements and a small trench dug last year sufficed to identify the position of these circles. The whole of the circles, 17 in all, in Handley's group have now been surveyed. A start has also been made with a further group, situated somewhat to the north of Handley's circles, and 14 of this group have already been measured. These lie on the very summit of Craig Rhiwarth, and command the country for many miles in all directions. The bearings of a central point have been carefully obtained so that the position may be found without difficulty, and the rest of the circles—still a considerable number—measured by future Llangynog campers.

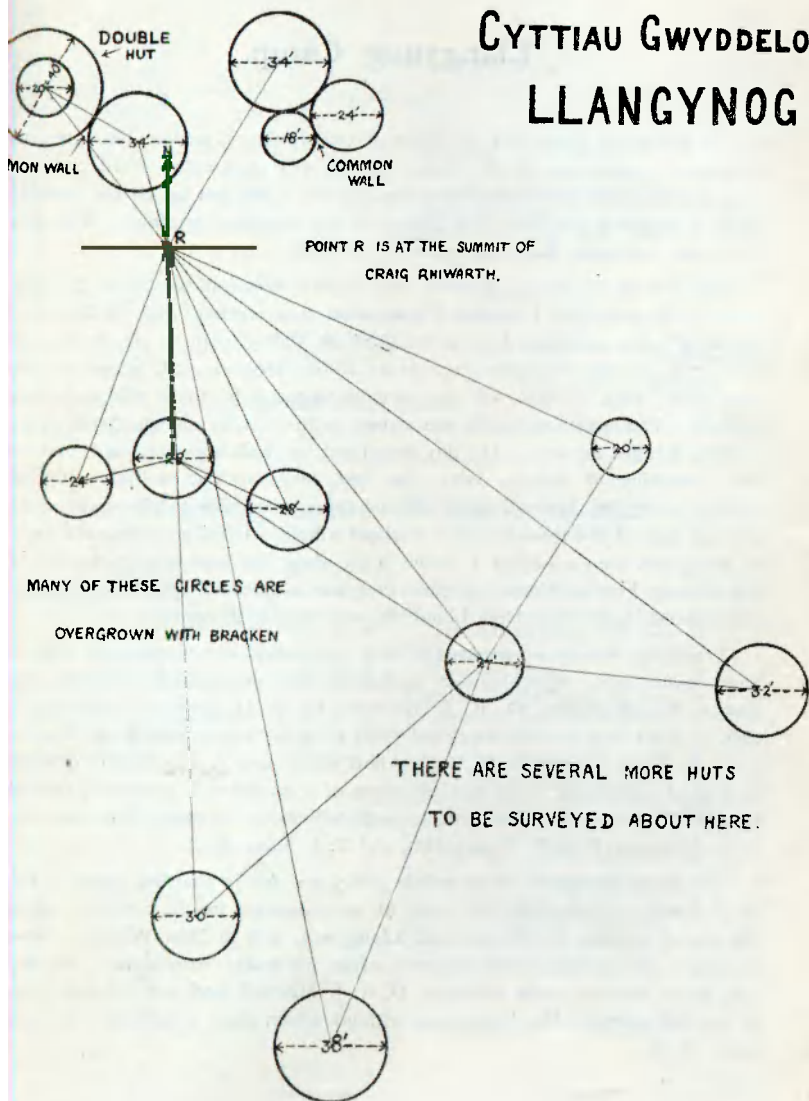

As no complete plan of this village has ever been made, this work is really useful as well as interesting. Unfortunately, no excavations could be made this year, but it is hoped that, with proper permission, some may be made later when a complete survey of the whole position has been obtained.

C. A. Mulligan (R.β), R. Youatt (4d), and T. J. Jeans (R.β) deserve special mention for the excellent work done this year.

ARCHÆOLOGIST.

CYTTIAU GWYDDELOD, LLANGYNOG

Llangynog Camp.

On Saturday, June 17th, a party of twenty-three considerably sunburnt stalwarts stepped out of the Welsh express (?) at London Road Station. Two wooden huts and a mountain tent pitched 1,000 feet up on the hill-side above Llangynog had been their home for the previous fortnight. With this as a base excursions had been made in every direction of the compass.

The tramps to Pistyll Rhaiadr (the highest waterfall in Great Britain) to Lake Vyrnwy (the Liverpool Corporation waterworks), with its imposing straining tower and huge dam, to the Pennant Valley, with its old church and yew trees, to the prehistoric remains at Rhos-y-Beddau, and, above all, the memorable walk to Bala, will not soon be forgotten by those who took part in them. The last-named walk was a most brilliant achievement, and deserves a more detailed account. The day was ideal for walking—fine, cool, and no sun. Starting 37 minutes later, the fast party arrived at Bala only 2 minutes after the slower, having covered the eleven miles to this point at an average rate of five miles per hour without a halt. A few minutes were spent in Bala, and then a further $4\frac{1}{2}$ miles walk along the lake side to the site of the Roman Fort at Caer Gai gave everyone a splendid appetite for lunch. The ten-mile walk home from Llanderfel was done in $2\frac{1}{2}$ hours.

Tramping was by no means the only occupation of the campers. There were naturalists, mineralogists, geologists and archaeologists among the party. Mr. Heathcote, D. E. J. Mitchell (4c), J. H. Manson (iv.γ) and J. (5c), J. Faux (4c), and M. Dyckhoff (iiiβ) of birds' eggs; and P. E. Barke (ivγ), N. F. A. Beattie (ivγ), A. Dyckhoff (iiia), and F. W. Walton (5b), of geological specimens; while measurements of a considerable portion of the old Goidel village on Craig Rhiwarth, immediately above the camp, were taken by C. A. Mulligan (R.β), R. Youatt (4d), and T. J. Jeans (R.β).

The heartiest thanks of the whole party are due in the first place to Mr. H. Watson, of Llangynog, who made all arrangements for the camp, including the church services in Hirnant and Llangynog, and to Mrs. Watson, whose succulent dishes were most welcome after whole-day excursions. We are also much indebted to the Adjutant, D. E. J. Mitchell, and last, but not least to the indefatigable Mr. Heathcote, without whom there would have been no camp at all.

Officers' Training Corps.

ANNUAL INSPECTION, SATURDAY, JUNE 24th, 1916.

The annual inspection of the contingent was carried out on Saturday, June 24th, Captain Walkley, R.S.O., having been deputed as our inspecting officer. At 9-45 that morning the Company fell in at the junction of Bury Old Road and Middleton Road. We were played from there to Heaton Park by the Band of the R.F.A., a privilege for which we are indebted to Captain Walkley. After marching past the lake, we were halted, sized and formed into line. The inspecting officer came up immediately, accompanied by the C.O., the band playing the "General Salute." A short inspection of uniforms and equipment followed. The Company then marched past in column of platoons, the inspecting officer taking the salute from the saluting base. The inspection, though short, was thorough. Each platoon was put through its paces in platoon drill, and a drill attack by the Company was well carried out; intervals were well maintained, fire orders were clear and intelligible, and the final charge was steady. After the inspection proper the gold and silver spoons for efficiency and shooting were presented by Captain Walkley, who, on presenting those for shooting, stressed the importance of shooting, and told us of a certain defence corps whose members, all except one, clamoured for a nice uniform in order to "look well." This one man, however, growled out, "I don't want any of your fine uniforms. Just give me a good rifle and I'll be satisfied."

The presentation over, Captain Walkley made a short speech, reminding us of our duties to the Empire. He added that the contingent's training had obviously been thorough and that he was pleased with the initiative displayed by cadets in the attack; that the days of minute inspection of uniforms and equipment were past. He wound up by an amusing anecdote of a general, a stern old martinet of the old type, who was inspecting a body of troops. Stopping at a man in the ranks, he enquired who was the captain of that Company. "I am, sir," said the captain, saluting. "Have you looked at that man, sir?" said the general. "Yes, sir," replied the captain. "Well, look at him again," said the general. The captain, who could see nothing wrong, tried to edge on after the general, who, seeing him, asked again, "Have you looked at that man?" Answered again in the affirmative, the general again said, "Well, look at him again." At last, when he was caught again trying to edge on, the general roared out, "Have you looked at that man?" The captain, quailing, managed to stammer out, "Ye-Ye-Yes, sir, I do see a faint resemblance to an aunt of mine."

On being dismissed the contingent was shown over the trenches at Heaton Park. Our thanks are due to the officers, N.C.O.s and men who went to such pains to explain the "ins and outs," such as bombers' posts, machine-gun emplacements, and the rest.

The contingent is to be complimented on the smart turn-out of all cadets, the good marching up to Heaton Park, and the manner in which every man carried out his part.

CHIEF OF THE STAFF.

The Field Day, July 15th.

The Corps paraded at 9-45 a.m., and marched in full kit from the "Half-way House," Bury Old Road, through Birch by way of Middleton Road to Bury. Here we halted for a short time, during which a fruiterer's shop was raided. Resuming the march we reached Holcombe Brook, where lunch was taken. The operations were left in the hands of the N.C.O.'s. A force represented by the Bury Grammar School Corps and the Bury Civic Guard was supposed to be marching from Blackburn to Bury when it discovered a force on its flank in the neighbourhood of Peel Tower. This was the M.G.S. Corps. Bury determined to make a direct attack on this force.

We were supposed to be in insufficient strength to withstand Bury's attack at this point, and so we retreated on Peel Tower. Unfortunately the attack was not pushed to extremities, or a rather unpleasant surprise would have most certainly annihilated Bury's already much depleted force. After the operations the contingent marched to Ramsbottom, where we entrained, arriving in Manchester about 6-45 p.m.

GREATCOAT CARRIER.

School Swimming.

Like most things, the School Swimming has suffered this year. We have greatly missed Mr. Carney and the real interest he took in his work; many of the Lower School forms have been unable to make use of the bath, whilst a rather large percentage of the Upper School boys seem to have been influenced by the sunless cold weather, the most common excuses being colds, measles, and other German atrocities. However, those who went in for swimming had all the more room and no less enjoyment.

Eighty-three boys passed the Roby test, and we may expect to get a few more before the end of term, if we can arrange for an additional competition. Our Life-Saving Class is progressing well under Mr. Macaulay and his lieutenant, A. Fuchs. The examination by the Life-Saving Society's representative will take place on July 27th, at Osborn Street Baths.

After a well-contested race our team won against the Lads' Club on July 14th. It was a close fight, and we only won by about one yard. The six competitors on our side were D. L. Evans (captain), F. H. Scotson, R. H. Colling, A. E. Lamb, P. H. Wooller, and R. Newton. These will be awarded the School colours on the day of the Swimming Sports (July 21st).

We have challenged the usual Schools competing for the Urwick trophy, and the match will take place on July 24th, at 4 p.m., at Mayfield baths. We trust our team will again win the cup we have held for eight years in succession.

With regard to the Sports, all the heats have been swum at the Blackfriars baths, in order not to interfere with each other as they did last year. We refer to the programme for further information concerning the half-mile race, which was held at 9-30 a.m. on the cold cheerless morning of July 8th. There were 105 entries, but it is not a matter of surprise that the actual number of competitors was 48. All acquitted themselves pluckily and finished in good style, sticking to it like real Lancashire boys. But it was cold! I rather think the half-mile has grown a trifle longer since last year; the boat seemed a little further off, and that would easily account for R. H. Colling failing to beat his own record of last year—11min. 5sec.

M. G. S. v. ST. BEDE'S COLLEGE.

Wednesday, June 7th, at Alderley. St. Bede's visited us at Alderley for this match, the game being played on the cricket ground there. Our opponents, batting first on a comparatively easy wicket, knocked up 104 runs without much apparent difficulty, but our team—weakened owing to several members being away for holidays—gave a very poor batting exhibition, and St. Bede's defeated us for the second time this season. M. G. S. v. SWINTON SCHOOLS.

Monday, June 12th, at Swinton. Our team was again weakened for this, the second of the holiday matches, and as we had not proved ourselves greatly superior—if at all—in the previous encounter on our ground, we considered our chances of pulling off the game none too good. Swinton won the toss and elected to bat first on a good batting wicket. They were greatly helped in their score of 160 by some bad fielding on our part, several easy catches being missed, whilst our bowling was not up to the usual standard. We opened our innings badly—three wickets falling with only 27 runs on the board, but when Bowden joined Harrison a change took place, and the two, batting freely, carried the score to 104 before the fall of the fourth wicket. The tail, carrying on the good work by consistent batting, gave a much better display than in any preceding game this season, and we won a very interesting game by 20 runs. We counted ourselves fortunate in having against us Capt. P. A. Blythe, of the 18th Manchesters, one of the Old Mancunian Military Cross winners, who was home on a week's leave from France at the time. Scores:—

M. G. S. v. MERCHANT TAYLORS' SCHOOL.

Saturday, June 24th, at the Cliff. Our opponents won the toss, and, somewhat strangely, put us in first. We opened our batting disastrously, four wickets being down with only six runs scored. After this matters improved somewhat, the tail wagging a little, but a score of 56 on an easy wicket cannot be said to redound to our credit. For our opponents, Vicary was most effective, taking eight wickets for 26 runs. Our dismissal of Merchant Taylors for 29 runs more than balanced the poor batting display, being a veritable triumph to which every member of the team contributed his share. If we opened our innings disastrously, Merchant Taylors' did more so in theirs. Their fifth wicket fell with only one run on the board, and only six runs had been scored when the seventh man was bowled. The fielding throughout was excellent, not a single run being thrown away or a chance being missed. We must, however, draw special notice to Bowden, who, although making his début as wicket-keeper for the first team, did so well against the fast bowling of Harrison and Marquis that only three byes were registered against him. The palm of the victory goes, of course, to the two latter, who bowled throughout the innings. They have both bowled well on more than one occasion this season, but in this match they excelled themselves. Scores :—

M. G. S. v. UNSWORTH C.C.

Saturday, July 1st, at the Cliff. The team was strengthened in this match by the inclusion of Mr. Hartley and Mr. Griffiths. Batting first, we gave a somewhat uneven display, the best part of which was the innings of Jackson, who batted extremely well for his 52 runs, and thereby pulled us out of a somewhat precarious position. Against our opponents Marquis again bowled extremely well, not one of the batsmen appearing very comfortable against him, although he was a bit erratic for the first two or three overs. Scores :—

M. G. S. v. BOWDON COLLEGE.

Wednesday, July 5th, at the Cliff. Owing to Matriculation, only five members of the usual team were able to turn out for this match, the remaining places being filled by members of the second and third teams. If the batting display given by the five first team members is any criterion as to what the other first team members would have done, had they been playing, it is perhaps just as well that we were strengthened by the inclusion of second and third team players, for, in opening the innings, the five between them made six runs! In a score of 72 runs we have to thank, chiefly, Austin for a particularly sound 29 (not out), and Dodson, who batted patiently for his 11 runs. However, once again the bowlers rose to the occasion, and Bowdon were dismissed for 57 runs, Harrison taking six wickets for 16. Scores:—

M. G. S. v. MERCHANT TAYLORS' SCHOOL.

Saturday, July 8th, at Liverpool. After the rain of the preceding week there was every indication that the pitch would be on the soft side, but about eleven o'clock the sun broke through the clouds, which cleared away as the afternoon went on, and things gradually improved from the batter's point of view. Consequently it was perhaps just as well for us that Merchant Taylors' elected to bat first on winning the toss. Marquis and Harrison opened the bowling, and, the former bowling especially well, wickets fell fairly easily, until, with the score at 50 for six, Hodson joined Ramsey. Despite the bowling changes the two carried the score to 94 before Hodson was bowled by Dean. Our fielding was not good at this point, and had several chances been taken the score might have been much less. The remaining three wickets added only nine runs, and the innings closed with the score at 103. Merchant Taylors' had been batting for nearly two and a half hours, and throughout they treated the bowling with respect. Our start was quite refreshing after the exhibitions given by the opening batsmen lately. The first two carried the score to 47 before Harrison was bowled, and although this standard was not kept up, we managed to beat our opponents by three wickets. We batted much more freely than Merchant Taylors', and the 130 was knocked up in less than an hour and three quarters. Scores:—

WHY THE NATIONS ARE AT WAR

THE CAUSES AND ISSUES OF THE GREAT CONFLICT

By CHARLES MORRIS & LAWRENCE H. DAWSON

Profusely Illustrated with Maps and Illustrations. Size $9\frac{1}{4} \times 6\frac{1}{2}$ in.,
480 pages, 5s. net.

A Graphic Story of the Nations Involved, their History and Former Wars, their Rulers and Leaders, their Armies and Navies, their Resources, the Reasons for Conflict, and the Issues at Stake.

This book gives an extremely interesting review of the History of Europe since the French Revolution of 1789, especially in relation to the political developments which have led to the Great War.

THE SOLDIER'S WORD AND PHRASE BOOK.

In English, French, and German. Pocket size, oblong, $5 \times 3\frac{1}{2}$ in., 96 pages. Waterproof binding, 6d. net; limp leather, 1/- net.

This valuable little book has been built up through actual experience with soldiers in the classroom by a small Committee of Modern Language experts. The pronunciation of every word is given and also a full alphabetical vocabulary.

A HISTORY OF THE ANCIENT WORLD.

By HUTTON WEBSTER, Professor in the University of Nebraska. Edited for use in English Schools by J. B. CHAPMAN, M.A. 230 Illustrations and 55 Maps. Demy 8vo, 704 pages, 6/- net.

The author has made a new and original arrangement of the material of Ancient History. The point of view is that of human life. The social, industrial, and commercial life of the Ancients is given with exceptional fullness. Their art, literature, and religion are not neglected, while political events and constitutional development receive all needed attention. The results of modern archaeological discoveries are fully treated. An attractive feature is the series of character-sketches of leading personages.
