A Concert by the Musical Societies will precede the play in the evenings.

Admission will be by programme only. These may be obtained from Form Monitors or at the Receiver's Office, price 1s.

Our heartiest congratulations to Dr. Bruton on the new honour, Litt.D., Manchester University, which has been conferred upon him.

Although the promoters did not realise the £200 which they set as their aim, the Mancunia Concert Party was an undoubted success. Their entertainment was very refreshing, and we are eagerly looking forward to their re-appearance next year.

Apparently the School is once more beginning to awake. The Debating Society has been revived, the Music Study Circle is a centre of attraction for young and old, the Chess Club is crowded out, and the Junior Debates fill the School with what some people might call their noisy prattle.

Is the School haunted? Whose ghost is it that prowls around these noble buildings at dead of night, "bending" glass windows and cracking locker doors? Is the School to suffer for his misdeeds? Will not some doughty knight rid us of his presence?

Our prefects will have to go in for a course of voice training. Their weak utterance at Morning Prayers evidently does not impress the lessons on the minds of the younger generation.

It is with the deepest sorrow that we record the death of Mr. Pollitt. The School seems to lack a great deal now he is no longer with us. New boys generally looked upon him with awe, thinking that he helped Hugh Oldham to found this venerable pile of buildings. May his successor stay with us as long.

We were startled to hear on December 3rd of the sudden death of Dr. Berlin.

Our best wishes to that faithful few who are venturing to snatch some shreds from Fortune's favours up at Oxford once more.

We have received the following Magazines during the month:—The Pauline, the Tonbridgian, the Serpent, the Harrovian, the Barrovian, the Portcullis, and the Taunton School's Journal.

Contributions, other than those relating to the O.M.A., will be received by Mr. A. S. Warman at the School.

O.M.A. Notes and O.M. Chronicle.

We are asked to announce that in future the price of the O.M. Badge will be 4s. 6d.

The J. R. Broadhurst Memorial Fund is still open. Subscriptions may be sent to the Treasurer, Mr. A. S. Warman, at the School.

Our congratulations to Professor F. W. Gamble, Professor of Zoology at Birmingham, who has been elected a Member of the Council of the Royal Society.

We offer our heartiest congratulations to Mr. J. S. Blake Reed, O.B.E. (late Lieutenant R.N.V.R.) on his appointment to be a Judge in the Egyptian Courts. He left for Egypt on October 26th. During the war he served for two years at Kirkwall on H.M.S. "Cyclops," and was later employed at the Admiralty. It will be remembered that his decoration with the O.B.E. was announced in our last number.

Lieut.-Col. G. Mackereth, M.C., has been appointed Vice-Consul at Beyrout.

Captain W. E. Nuttall, R.A.F., has been awarded the M.B.E. for work in the Royal Aircraft Factory.

Lieut.-Col. Whitley, who is an international Lacrosse Captain, has been abroad in the Sudan, Gallipoli, Sinai, and Syria since September, 1914. He has been awarded the Military Cross, French Croix de Guerre (with palm), and the Order of the Crown of Italy (Knight). He has recently been on special duty into the Taurus Mountains, and into Kurdistan.

Lieutenant A. E. Jackson, of the East Lancashire Regiment, has been appointed Education Officer at Kinsale to the 1st Essex Regiment.

We hear that Mr. G. S. Atkinson, who during his time in the Army, was mentioned in dispatches, has passed his B.Sc. at the Manchester College of Technology.

Mr. L. Marks has passed the Solicitors' Final Examination with First Class Honours, and has been awarded the Law Society's Prize.

N.B.—Will members please note that subscriptions should be paid to Mr. FRED ETCHELLS, Assistant Secretary, at the School, and that changes of address should be notified (also to Mr. ETCHELLS) without delay.

Obituary.

PERCIVAL WOODCOCK.

Were I another Milton I would write a second Lycidas, "Dead 'ere his prime;" such another one was Percival Woodcock, late Natural Science Scholar of Corpus Christi College, Oxford. Full of the fire and glowing ambition of youth, he burned to make his mark in the world. He longed to a greater degree than most to do great things for his fellowmen. He was caught up away from amongst us before he could accomplish more than a part of his heart's desire.

He died on November 17th, having been confined to his bed for five days only. Coming to the School in 1910, he moved rapidly up the Modern Side, taking his Matric. in 1914, with Honours in Chemistry. He then went into Sc. VI., and working under Mr. Francis Jones and Mr. Schmitz, gained his Scholarship to Oxford in June, 1916.

In the autumn of 1916 he enlisted as private in the R.A.M.C., and after a preliminary training at Aldershot, went out to the near East. At first near Kautara, he afterwards served for many months out in the Eastern desert towards Gaza. There he did well, being in sole charge of the X-Ray work. He was transferred to Salonika last winter, and during the final attack on the Grand Colon was well up in the fighting line, tending the wounded. He marched with the advancing troops up the Vardar Valley, finally reaching Rustchuk on the Danube. Demobilised in March of this year, he went up to Oxford in April, and settled down comparatively quickly. During the short time he was amongst us, he did well, giving every promise of a worthy career. He had that touch of human-ness which makes the successful doctor.

I knew him first at School in 1913—quiet, unassuming, but with a weight of that which makes a man. A hard worker, of a kindly heart, one of the best of friends, and one of the straightest men I have ever met.

To his mother, his sisters, and his brothers we extend our deepest sympathy. Those of us who knew him best, we miss him too. He was one we can ill afford to lose—but what we have lost, he has gained (and more) eternally. The Aftermath of War—one more of those who have grown up together with us, who have given their all for a great and noble Ideal.

"For God requires no more than thou hast done,
And takes thy work to bless it for His own."

CHARLES POLLITT.

I remember Pollitt when I first went to the School more than thirty years back. I felt great respect for him; he was so efficient and so gentle. During the time between, during the fifteen years when as boy and master I saw much of him, I have felt the respect increase and ripen into deep regard. It was with a very real sense of loss that I heard how he got his release from work here last November the 4th, dying, almost literally, in harness, after 47 years of loyal and most patient service. While I was at the School I personally never remember him away; he knew that the School needed him, and with Pollitt duty not merely came first but filled his whole horizon. I never met a boy who did not regard him with trust and affection, and he had in an uncommon measure the esteem and confidence of all the masters.

The secret of the respect and liking that Pollitt inspired was in his character, so modest, unselfish, self-forgetting, uncomplaining. No servant ever gave more unstinted service than he, and no one in all the School contributed more fully, in his measure, to its efficient working. It seems impossible that he will no longer enter the form-room for the absentee-lists, or with the punishment books; that we shall never again see that grave and gentle face, overwhelmed almost by the sturdy life beneath it, directing the traffic at the stair-head. The masters will miss his coming round for their holiday addresses, a sure sign of the end of term. Old boys will feel the difference when they no longer catch a glimpse of Pollitt, ever busy and ever courteous, on re-visiting the School. To many of us the old place will never be quite the same again, will fail somewhat in its proper welcome. I shall not readily forget how, when I saw him last September, he tried to excuse himself from shaking hands because his hand was damp with window-cleaning. I told him the truth, that, damp or dry, it was more than good enough for me. I little thought I was shaking that honest hand and looking into those kindly eyes for the last time.

"Where are they gone, the old, familiar faces?" We can only dimly speculate as to their whereabouts, but we can be sure of this, that wherever his present sphere may be, our Charles Pollitt is doing his part, nobly and untiringly, there as here.

In Memoriam.

I. R. BROADHURST.

We will hold fast the memory of thee;
So many lies there are, so much of pain,
So many blots the face of nature stain;
Of thy so sweet remembrance we will be
The faithful keepers; who wert loth to see
Men's ugly hearts, wert ever wont to strain
After the faint, far, exquisite things whose gain
Makes every common thing a treasury.
O generous soul, of that fine company still
Where Lamb and Shakspeare make immortal fun
And Keats is "tip-toe on a little hill,"
How art thou dead? Thou art for ever one
With all fair things thine eyes taught us to see.
We will hold fast the memory of thee. G. HARRISON.

Dr. Mumford's Book on the Grammar School.

Our first feeling on seeing the handsome volume of 563 pages entitled "The Manchester Grammar School," and bearing on its cover the School Arms and the Old Mancunian colours, was one of hearty congratulation to Dr. Mumford (may we not add to Mrs. Mumford also? for the preface makes full acknowledgment of her share in the undertaking) at the culmination of the labour of so many years. For a long time now Dr. Mumford has been as familiar a figure at the Reference Library as the Librarians themselves; we believe special accommodation has had to be provided for him at Chetham's Hospital; and the School Library has seemed to oscillate between Long Millgate and his house in Wilmslow Road. The result of all this enthusiastic research is a mass of material and small detail which he confesses in his Preface he has not had leisure to handle without laying himself open to the charge of "scrappiness of method."

Hitherto we have had three histories of the Grammar School: the valuable (if somewhat cumbrous) summary in "The Three Foundations"; the very inadequate account given by Mr. Leach in the Victoria History; and the admirable little sketch written by Mr. R. D. Hodgson, which would well bear re-printing exactly as it stands.

As regards the volume before us, let us be clear on two points: (1) On page 540 reference is made to a decision of the Old Boys in 1913 to publish a History of the School. The present volume does not profess to be such a history. It styles itself "A regional study of the advancement of learning in Manchester since the Reformation." Even so, it has gone far beyond Manchester—actually to Sweden, e.g., in search of movements that may have influenced local education. (2) In spite of this wide aim, the book contains an immense amount of information about the School, and our advice to those who approach it mainly to learn about the old foundation, would be to confine their first reading to the chapters that bear specially on the School itself, viz., the first, which deals with its foundation; the thirteenth, which treats of the Revolution brought about by the advent of Mr. Walker (these are, to our mind, the best chapters in the book); and from that point onwards, omitting the numerous references to other institutions in the city. Then let the reader skip the twenty-one appendices and proceed to the interesting sketch which follows them, entitled "The School during War-time."

He may afterwards return and trace the records of the earlier struggles of the Grammar School amid the mass of other material, and may be astonished to come upon such details as the "Petit" School, containing boys and girls from five upwards, and lady teachers; to discover a whole chapter entitled "Threatened collapse"; and to encounter the startling statement (p. 151) that "in all probability during some part of the years 1739—40 the School was actually closed." Members of the Mathematical Sixth may be inspired by the statement (p. 193) that in 1759 Old Mancunians held the positions of Senior, Third and Fifth Wranglers; while boys in the Lower School will be glad to be able to remind the High Master of the Resolution recorded on p. 207: "That on the occasion of the Old Boys' Dinner there be a holiday for a whole day for the Schoolboys."

There is no need to criticise the book; the author has constituted himself his own critic. We have already quoted one of his pleadings; to this he adds a confession of "some lack of proper perspective," and "not a few inaccuracies." No candid reviewer can say that there is no ground for these self-accusations. A number of errors have escaped detection; to take only a few: Middleton is not part of the City of Manchester (p. 25); France did not declare war on England in 1791 (p. 228); Mr. Alfred Hughes was not (we think) an assistant master at the Liverpool Institute (p. 393); and "Machele" is rather a bad misprint for Manchester (p. 432).

The "lack of perspective" we are inclined to attribute to an Old Mancunian's zeal for his Alma Mater, which leads him to imagine that every educational or religious movement during the last four centuries, however distant and obscure, must of necessity have had its counterpart in some sense in what was for at least half that period a struggling Grammar School in a country town. There are picturesque elements in the early history and development of this famous School, nevertheless, as well as in the growth of the town, which we seem sadly to miss amid the huge mass of other details that fill these pages.

A word is due to the illustrations. All Mancunians, and especially Johnians, will thank Dr. Mumford for introducing the beautiful portrait of the Lady Margaret which forms the frontispiece; but why should the founder's portrait be omitted? Among Mr. Garnett's clever sketches, we seem to like best that of Sarah, Duchess of Somerset, perhaps because her name is so familiar. The picture of Mr. Yates's beautiful model makes us wonder why Manchester people will allow such a treasure to lie hidden away in a house in Moss Side.

The Index, though it runs to ten pages, is curiously inefficient. Over and over again, when we have wanted a cross reference, it has completely failed us.

Le Mot Juste.

(A Holiday Note.)

Is aptness of expression taught
 At Trinity and Merton?
 Can epithets precise be bought
 From Somerville and Girton?
 Their sons and daughters seaward throng
 For sunlit waves to dip in,
 And everything the whole day long
 Is hailed as "simply rippin."

Or mountains their affections hold
With inn or farm to stop in,
And field and fold and weald and wold
Are "absolutely toppin."

Each pleasing sight will thus require
But two stock words to hymn it;
A rainstorm or a punctured tyre
Will need but one—"the limit."

A Letter from Belgium.

DEAR Ulula,

I read with interest the Speech day proceedings included in your October number, and I ask you, Ulula, to beware of the dazzling prospect our Reverend Bishop dangles before your eyes.

No doubt, in your present position, you are somewhat hidden away, you have not that prominence in the eyes of the old city and its visitors of which you are worthy, and a fine open site, with a structurally superior building to honour you, splendidly fitted with the best of everything, would only be your just due; also thereby future scholars would correspondingly benefit, it is to be supposed.

But no honour, in gifts or endowments, can compare with the honour and pride of fame justly earned. From that "hidden" corner of Old Millgate, year after year you have sent out your cherished ones into the highways of the world. Your reward is simple—yet none finer, for it consists in the fact that there are O.M.'s all over the world; the peaceful shelter you have long held with folded wings is known in every country. Consider, further, your honours list; look down the lists of time and note (with ever-swelling and justified pride) the high positions and proud honours to which many of those who have been formerly beneath your wing have attained.

Think also, dear Ulula, of those who are no longer near you, but whose great desire is always to visit you on returning to their old city. What would it mean to us to find you housed, as proudly and splendidly as wealth and affection could conceive, in a strange spot? Those of the Classical Transitus of old would find all their associations entirely lost, for "Old Broadie," they would know, had never trodden the stairways, passages and form-rooms. Nor would those who "commenced life" in old 2 β , under the splendid and ever-unforgotten Mr. Wilkinson, find any echo of their sentiments therein. And thus it would be for each visitor, according to his associations. He would be a stranger!

No! Sentiment counts, and so I say—keep your wings folded, dear Ulula, and remain peaceably where you are, so that all these thousands who will never forget your precepts, and ever cherish your memory, may from time to time experience the deep pleasure of re-visiting you, and at the same time preserving their old associations alive, and keeping their old traditions intact.

Belgium, 5th November, 1919.

O.T.C. Notes.

Admiral Sturdee visited the School early in the term, and honoured the Corps by an inspection. He spoke in high terms of the rank and file, and was exceedingly pleased with the turn out.

The recruits are very keen, and have made excellent progress with their drill and musketry.

At the moment we are all looking forward to the O.T.C. holiday, when we are to have a sham fight at Holcombe, to be followed by a tea and sing-song at the School.

The arrival of the 1914 equipment has put new enthusiasm into all ranks, and as many recruits are coming forward next term we hope soon to be able to report the contingent at full strength. The older cadets are already working for Certificate A—the hall-mark of an efficient cadet—and good work has been done in the promotion class. An examination was held in November, and as a result the following appointments were made:—To be Lance-Corporals: J. C. Taylor, G. D. Wild, R. W. Garner, N. L. Mayor, G. Provost, E. F. Evans, L. R. Molyneux, A. C. Neill.

Football.

FIRST ELEVEN v. BOLTON SCHOOL.

At Bolton, on October 11th. Unfortunately School had only nine men, but despite this was able to hold its own. Early in the first half Bolton scored from a centre from the left wing, and though pressing hard, School was unable to score. Half-time: School, 0; Bolton, 1.

The second half was much better contested. Bolton forced a corner, and from it their centre put into the net. Then School attacked strongly, and Worthington scored with a long shot. Whitehead scored from a corner. Turner scored the winning goal with a run through. Result:—

School, 3; Bolton School, 2.

Team.—Kirsop, Tarbett, Kemp, Blake, Worthington, Gilchrist, Turner, Jacques and Whitehead.

FIRST ELEVEN v. ST. BEDE'S COLLEGE.

At the Cliff, on October 18th. School started in the river goal, and were soon attacking. The game was very fast, but neither side was able to score. St. Bede's had slightly the better of the game in the first half, but the score at half-time was: School, 0; St. Bede's, 0.

After about ten minutes in the second half Turner broke through and scored. St. Bede's attacked, and, after a severe struggle, their centre equalised with a magnificent shot. Content with this, they remained on the defensive for the rest of the game, and prevented School from scoring. Result:—

School, 1; St. Bede's, 1.

Team.—Kirsop; Tarbett, Sharp; Worthington, Blake, Kemp; Whitehead, Jacques, Turner, Hobson and Gilchrist.

FIRST ELEVEN v. MANCHESTER UNIVERSITY SECOND.

At Fallowfield, on October 25th. The University were a much heavier and faster team than School, and in consequence when the School forwards did attack, they were unable to score. In the first half Kirsop left his goal and the ball went over his head into the net. Half-time: School, 0; Manchester University, 1.

In the second half the University attacked most of the time, but could only score twice. Result:—

School, 0; University, 3.

Team.—Kirsop; Tarbett, Sharp; Worthington, Blake, Kemp; Whitehead, Jacques, Hobson, Turner and Gilchrist.

FIRST ELEVEN v. SALFORD TECHNICAL INSTITUTE.

At the Cliff, on October 29th. The Institute fielded only nine men, and in consequence School's goal was rarely in danger. In the first half Kemp and Hobson scored for School, and in the second Hobson, Whitehead, and Turner. Result:—

School, 5; Salford Technical Institute, 0.

Team.—Kirsop; Sharp, Gilchrist; Worthington, Blake, Kemp; Tarbett, Whitehead, Hobson, Jacques and Turner.

FIRST ELEVEN v. MANCHESTER UNIVERSITY SECOND.

At the Cliff, on November 1st. School were in the river goal, and the University scored early from a free kick for hands against Worthington. Hobson scored for School, but the University got a gift goal from a shot by the outside right. Half-time: School, 1; Manchester University, 2.

Soon after the restart, the University scored again. Then after some midfield play, Blake found the net with the best shot of the match. However the University added two more goals to their score, leaving the final score at 2—5.

Team.—Kirsop; Sharp, Gilchrist; Worthington, Blake, Kemp; Tarbett, Whitehead, Hobson, Turner and Mr. Green.

FIRST ELEVEN v. MEDICAL SCHOOL.

At the Cliff, on November 5th. The Medicals were a team of non-descripts, but lead at half-time by one goal to nothing, School having had most of the play, but being unable to score.

In the second half, School overwhelmed their opponents, but only scored twice, while in the twilight the Medicals scored once again. The School's goals were scored by Hobson and Jacques. Result:—

School, 2; Medicals, 2.

Team.—Kirsop; Sharp, Gilchrist; Worthington, Blake, Kemp; Tarbett, Whitehead, Hobson, Jacques and Turner.

Lacrosse.

M.G.S. FIRST TEAM v. Y.M.C.A.

At Fallowfield, on October 11th. This match was very closely contested throughout. Again we had not our full team, three of our best players being off, Mr. Hartley, Tomson (Captain), and Blake. The score at half-time was 5—5.

On resuming, Y.M.C.A. attacked more strongly, although they had lost one man owing to injury, Deacon accompanying him. Fielden at first home showed great promise, scoring three goals. Mayor and Barker also scored. Result:—

Y.M.C.A., 7; School, 5.

Team.—Wilson, Deacon, Attenborough, Jeans, Mitchell, Atkinson, Barker, N., Barker, K., Mayor, Molyneux, Smith and Fielden.

M.G.S. FIRST TEAM v. Y.M.C.A.

Away, on October 15th. This time School were able to turn out a full team, and were thus able to turn the tables on Y.M.C.A. The game was very fast throughout. School opened the score in the first few minutes. The Y.M.C.A. had a very good attack, but a weaker defence, which we managed to penetrate. Result:—

School, 12; Y.M.C.A., 8.

Team.—Wilson, Deacon, Atkinson, Jeans, Barker, N., Mitchell, Tomson, Barker, K., Mayor, Mr. Hartley, Blake, Fielden.

M.G.S. FIRST TEAM v. Y.M.C.A.

At home, on October 25th. This was the third match against Y.M.C.A. Again Fielden opened the score for School. There was a marked improvement in our defence, owing to an alteration, and the game was evenly contested throughout. Result:—

School, 5; Y.M.C.A., 4.

Team.—Wilson, Deacon, Jeans, Blake, Mitchell, Attenborough, Tomson, Barker, N., Mayor, Barker, K., Molyneux and Fielden.

M.G.S. FIRST TEAM v. UNIVERSITY "A."

At home, on November 5th. In this game School played quite well, although our attacks' shooting was poor. The defence marked their men much better than usual, and are greatly improving. Result:—

University, 8; School, 4.

Team.—Wilson, Deacon, Mitchell, Blake, Barker, N., Fielden, Tomson, Mr. Hartley, Mayor and Holland.

Harriers.

The first run of the season, on September 20th, was from the Cliff. The day was breezy and dry, and very pleasant for running. The turnout was small. The usual trail was followed by the river bank and over the golf links to Drinkwater Park. We then kept to the right until Rainsough was reached. We crossed the hill, and reaching the golf links, returned the way we came.

On September 27th we ran from Sale High School. There was not the usual turnout, but good considering the railway strike. The trail was as usual, crossing Baguley Brook several times. The pace then gradually increased. H. M. Crighton gained the first place, followed a few paces behind by G. S. Rigby.

On October 11th we ran from Eccles Secondary School. We followed a course over the golf links to the Bridgewater Canal, and then on to some woods. Here we met five of our pack, who had been on a run of their own. We ran through the woods, along a well-kept path, for about half a mile, when we found ourselves in front of a large private house. Instantly a dash was made for the fence, followed by a race over a potato field, and we did not slacken pace until we had reached the road. We were soon by the canal, and we ran back to Monton along the towpath.

On October 24th the run was from Didsbury Sunday School with the O.M.A. Harriers. The trail followed the bank of the Mersey for about a mile, and then turned to the left and went towards the railway. Regaining the river bank it kept to it for some distance, then re-crossing the railway, made for home. The distance covered was about seven miles. The hares were gained upon, and there was some very good running. Green (O.M.) came in first. The next five places were taken by M.G.S. Harriers.

On November 1st the run was from the Scout Club Room, Pendlebury. The trail led down to Clifton Junction, whence it crossed the canal, then up Molyneaux Brow. Then bearing well to the right went down the Clough back to Clifton Junction and thence home.

The run on November 15th was from Fallowfield with the H.O.L.C. The trail led in the direction of the railway, which was crossed opposite the Aerodrome. Here it took a big turn to the right, and after a mile crossed Wilbraham Road and ran in the fields, parallel to it till home was reached. Wilson, of the H.O.L.C., came in first, Stourton (O.M.) second, and five M.G.S. Harriers came in the first twelve.

On November 22nd we ran from North Manchester School. G. S. Rigby and T. M. Griffith were the hares. The trail followed, in the main, the North Manchester Steeplechase course; out in the direction of Blackley and back by Heaton Park. Crighton and Latimer were the first in.

The North Wales Trek.

This comes as rather a belated memory of the trek, called forth by the desire to put on record its great doings.

We left the School on July 29th, a gallant band of thirty, and trekking from Penmaenmawr struck south, and made Trefriw on the third day, thence after a few days to Capel Curig, where we camped in pouring rain. From there we went on through Bethesda, Llanberis, and Beddgelert, so encircling Snowdon. Then finally leaving the mountains we struck south and reached Criccieth in glorious weather. There we revelled in sea-bathing. Then in a single day's march north we crossed the Peninsula to Clynog, whence through Carnarvon and Bangor we came back to Penmaenmawr.

Among many great days, one stands alone, the famous day on which we climbed Snowdon. We climbed up past cold Glaslyn and Lidaw, overhung by the grim precipice of Llewedd, swathed in dank mist, nor could any sun break through. But just before we began the downward climb a breeze sprang up and blew away the mists from around us, and the sun broke through, and all around us just below our feet there stretched to the farthest horizon a vast billowy snow-white sea of clouds, while through rifts here and there could be seen for a moment lakes which gleamed blue, set in the green hills far below. Then the mist closed round us as before. After that came the long tramp home through the evening, with the three jagged peaks of Snowdon behind us showing purple against the dying light, and as we neared Capel, the yellow moon reflected in the lake.

The other famous thing was "short cuts." May they haunt Kenyon and the other infamous perpetrators!

We had beautiful weather throughout the whole time, except for a few days of rain, and fine bathing. We are very grateful to Mr. Green and the other masters who ran the camp so well, and not least to the brothers Griffith for their aid.

Scripture Union.

Meetings have been held throughout the term during the dinner-hours from 12-50 to 1-8 p.m. on Tuesdays and Fridays. In attendance we are on the upward grade, for while for the term the average is 57, that for the month of November has risen to 75. We draw special attention to these meetings both because at present they are attended by only a small percentage of our members and because there are many others in the School who would derive much benefit from them. Meetings for Keenites (keen members of the Union) also have been held after School, but the attendance at these has remained very low. The number of members up to the end of November is 164, but we hope to improve on this very considerably before the end of the term.

The Rev. J. A. Meeson has been appointed one of our vice-presidents—a small recognition considering the great amount of work which he has undertaken on our behalf.

An Old Boys' branch of the Scripture Union has been started by R. H. Poyser (O.M.), and it is hoped that all members of the School S.U. will transfer to this branch on leaving School. Further particulars may be obtained from the School Secretary.

The Speakers at the mid-day meetings have been the Bishop of Manchester, The Dean of Manchester, Canon Green, Rev. J. J. Wilson, Rev. W. H. Finney, Rev. C. P. Keeling, Rev. J. A. Meeson, Mr. Hudson Pope, Mr. Hartley, Rev. J. Stirling, Mr. Madden, Rev. R. G. Parsons, Rev. F. A. Fosbrooke, and Rev. A. G. Fox. We wish to acknowledge our gratitude to them.

Literary Society.

A Meeting of this Society was held on November 11th, Mr. Warman in the chair, at which Mr. Cox gave us a most interesting lecture on "Some thoughts on Synge and other things." Synge was born in the rugged West of Ireland, and in his plays he sets before us the life of the folk with whom he used to dwell. To illustrate his views he read out to us "Riders to the Sea," showing us its pathetic simplicity and literary beauty. A spirited discussion followed, and the members taking advantage of the "other things," extended their meditations far into the hazy realms of Labour and Socialism. There was an excellent attendance, and the lecture was heartily enjoyed. The meeting finally broke up at 5-30.

A Meeting was held on November 25th, Mr. Warman in the chair, at which Galsworthy's "Strife" was read by the members, and very much enjoyed. The meeting broke up at 5-10.

Debating Society.

At last, after several abortive efforts, the Debating Society has been resuscitated. Despite the pessimistic views of two or three who had been disheartened by previous failure, a meeting was called on October 14th, for that purpose, and all fears about the apathy of those eligible for membership were dispelled. During the election of officers a great deal of heat was developed, and many things said which do not appear in the minutes. These officers were elected:—President, Kemp; Vice-President, Blake; Treasurer, Hirsh; Librarian, Cornofsky; and Secretary, for some reason not apparent, and in his absence (hence his election), Richardson.

This first ordinary Meeting was held on October 28th, when an Impromptu Debate was held. Wilson proposed "That, I.O.T.H., Queen Anne is dead." He sat down, however, "without troubling the scorer," at any rate not very much, and Kirsop, who is a devout spiritualist and table-rapper, secured all the support for his case. Lost, 21 to 7.

Hirsh moved "That Gampell ought to be raised to the Peerage," principally on the ground that Gampell was too good for M.G.S., and that he was being wasted in that enervating atmosphere. Gampell opposed in person, but he cast his pearls of eloquence before swine, and the motion was unanimously passed. A sharp discussion took place concerning the number of cranes necessary to raise the Peer-elect to his new dignity. The motion was carried almost unanimously.

In moving that "Mr. Schlosberg is an ornament to the Society," Parness revealed the secret of that gentleman's inner life for the first time. Strange though it may seem, Schlosberg is a poet of the first water, as his unpublished works show. Bolchover opposed, but these pages shall not be defiled by a report of his speech. Sufficient it is to say that the motion was carried by an overwhelming majority.

Jacobs then moved "That Beecham's Pills are immeasurably superior to Beecham's Opera." Owing to the need which arose about this time for the ejection of part of the Society, his speech was difficult to follow. Vogel opposed, and the Society signalled its confidence in him and in Beecham Junior by defeating the motion by 15 votes to 10. Manchester is indubitably the premier musical city of the kingdom.

The mover of the motion "That the Captain's hair should be cut," got no further, it may well be imagined, than a reference to "unkempt" hair. In spite of this and Page-Jones' pathetic inquiry "what would the Westinghouse damsels say," this was carried by 15 to 7.

Those who were so foolish as to stay till the bitter end witnessed a spectacle that would move even the most flinty-hearted to tears. Anybody not present would certainly deny that anybody could have reached such Himalayan heights of insanity as were reached by Cornofsky and Hyman. The motion with which they were nominally concerned was an extremely serious one, but they were not impressed by its import. At length, when the absolute zero of sanity had been reached, a vote was taken, and it was decided that, if possible, Cornofsky was the worse case of the two, and the motion was lost by 7 votes to 6. The meeting adjourned at 4-40.

A Meeting was held on November 4th, Kemp in the chair. After the revision of the minutes (which occupied 45 of them) Hyman proposed "That, I.O.T.H., the Nationalisation of the Coalmines and Railways would be disastrous to the prosperity of the Country." In a somewhat lengthy exposition of his case the mover was repeatedly heckled in a most futile manner, but he succeeded in drawing a most terrifying picture of the country if these things came to pass.

Cornofsky opposed, and described a modern Utopia, which, it is to be feared, is a long way off yet. Richardson spoke third, and was followed by Hirsh, Todd, Wilson and others. The last-named described his experiences with the daughters of Pendlebury miners, who, it seems, keep a stock of half-bricks with which to welcome him and other unfortunates who venture into that district on Sunday evenings.

After further discussion a vote was taken, seven being for and seven against. The chairman gave his casting vote against the motion.

Junior Debating Society.

REVIEW OF AUTUMN MEETINGS, 1919.

The absence of any report in the last issue of Ulula must not be taken as indicative of any lapse in the Society's activities. We have met regularly every Friday afternoon in Room 17 (by kind permission of Mr. Bally), and have had an average attendance of about 36. The success of our meetings has largely been due to the untiring efforts of our President, who has taken the chair on all but two occasions. The election of officers for the coming session was as follows:—President, O. C. Collinge, Esq.; Secretary, Wilkinson (IVa); Assistant Secretary, Kershaw (M.vi.). Our late Secretary (W. A. Richardson) was rewarded for his services by being created a Vice-President of the Society.

The following is an abbreviated account of the Meetings held up to date:—

September 26th.—Richardson moved, "That this house favours the Nationalisation of the Coal Mines," describing his thrilling experiences down a mine. Blore, who is perhaps the most eloquent of our number, opposed. The motion was defeated by 20 votes to 9.

October 3rd.—Kershaw moved, "That this house believes in Ghosts," relating blood-curdling incidents involving "The Mystery of the Red-haired Servant Girl." Wilkinson opposed, using rather strong language against Spiritualists in general, Sir Oliver Lodge in particular. Despite the time-worn subject of discussion, all the speeches were listened to with the utmost interest. The motion was carried by 19 votes to 18.

October 10th.—Mr. Elias (one time Hon. Sec. of the Society) moved, "That the Dress of to-day is uncomfortable, unhealthy, and must be abolished." Kershaw opposed, picking all the mover's statements to bits. The motion was lost by 13 votes to 8.

October 17th.—Griffiths discoursed violently on the subject of Home Rule, thinking that there should be North and South Parliaments, with a senate sitting at Dublin. McKeone demanded entire separation for his native land. Mr. Cox moved a motion to the effect "That this House strongly disapproves of the policy of the present Government towards Ireland," which was seconded by McKeone. Griffiths proposed an amendment, seconded by Blore, "That Ireland would be governed more satisfactorily by two Parliaments." After a squabble between Messrs. Cox and Blore the House divided. The motion was carried by 22 to 0.

October 24th.—McKeone moved, "That the policy of Britain's intervention in Russia is unwarranted." There followed eleven speeches from various members, and the motion was carried by 21 votes to 20.

October 31st.—It had been decided to hold a series of impromptu debates on this date. Storey moved, "That there should be at least one half holiday each week at M.G.S." This was carried unanimously by 28 votes to 18. Hutt then moved, "That the hours of Homework should be curtailed." No one was found to oppose this motion, so it was put to the vote and carried by 33 votes to 3. Hutt (evidently in his element at impromptu debates) again moved, "That the Kaiser should be brought to trial immediately." Many speeches of good length but little reasoning followed, and the motion was lost by 19 votes to 20.

E. WILKINSON, Hon. Secretary.

Philosophical Society.

A Meeting was held on October 7th, when R. Greenhalgh read a paper on "Telephonic Inventions."

A Meeting was held on October 14th, when Mr. Schmitz gave a lecture on "The Passage of Electricity through Gases." He gave us much data concerning the subject, and the lecture was very much appreciated.

On October 22nd W. A. Richardson gave a lecture on "Sir William Ramsay." The lecturer gave details of his career at various universities, and discussed many of Ramsay's experiments.

On October 29th E. C. Bramley read a paper on "The Channel Tunnel." He described in detail how the proposed tunnel would be constructed, and concluded by giving some statistics as to the cost of construction.

On November 5th T. H. Geldart gave a lecture on "Mathematical Recreations and Amusements." He worked out some most ingenious problems, several of which were of very ancient date. It was a very interesting lecture.

On November 19th S. G. Corbishley read a paper on "Kinema Photography." He dealt with the earliest attempts at producing motion pictures, gradually traversing the history of the Kinematograph. It was an exceedingly good paper.

Music Study Circle.

Friday, October 31st.—A Meeting was held at 5-15 p.m., in the large lecture theatre, Mr. Barnes in the chair, when Miss Mitchell, pianist, Miss Losli, violinist, Miss Batty, 'cellist, from the Royal College of Music, gave a recital. The programme was of miscellaneous character, and the music was much appreciated by the members, although not a few regrets were expressed that the programme was not of a longer duration.

Friday, November 7th.—A Meeting was held at 5-15 p.m., in the Drawing Hall, Mr. Lob in the chair. Mrs. Kenneth Lodge, L.R.A.M., gave an extremely interesting lecture on Edward Macdowell. After a short sketch of his life, selections were played from his various compositions, and some of his vocal works were excellently rendered by Miss Madge Leach, who kindly assisted Mrs. Lodge.

PROGRAMME.

Astronomical Society.

The Astronomical Society met for the first time this term on October 30th. The following officers were elected by the vote of the members present:—President, The High Master; Chairman, W. A. Richardson (Sc. 6); Secretary, J. D. Kershaw (Mod. 6b); Assistant Secretary, J. Tomlinson (M.R.); Librarian, Kadeliffe (Sh.β); Curators, Clark, Ingham, Bolchover, Barlow, Lindores, Adamson.

The Society is to meet on alternate Thursdays during the Christmas and Lent terms. The subscription is 6d. per term, with an entrance fee of 3d.

The second Meeting of the Society, postponed for a week owing to the H.O.L.C. Concerts, was held on November 20th, the Secretary in the chair. The Chairman (Richardson) proceeded to deliver a paper on "The Spectroscope in Astronomy." He dealt first with the theory of the Spectroscope, and then passed to its uses. He mentioned that by means of this instrument almost all visible stars have been proved to be double.

The researches of Fraunhofer and Bunsen were next dealt with, and details were given of the discovery of the presence of iron and helium in the sun by means of the spectroscope. The lecture was illustrated by the School spectroscope, and was followed with great interest by all present. A vote of thanks to the lecturer was proposed by Geldart and seconded by Tomlinson. It was carried unanimously.

At a Committee Meeting on November 20th, it was decided that the School Telescope would be at the disposal of members on the roof on alternate Fridays at 6 p.m.

J. D. KERSHAW.

Philatelic Society Report.

The attendance to this Society has been very good, between 20 and 30 members being present at the Meetings, which are held every other Wednesday in Mr. Barton's room.

October 8th.—It was decided that the Society should meet every Wednesday for the exchange of duplicates. After discussing the question of magazines and catalogues to be at the disposal of the Society, the School Collection was exhibited and the Meeting was then adjourned.

October 22nd.—The Society entertained as visitor Mr. Chaney, who exhibited some Philatelic novelties. He asked to see the Hankins Collection, and expressed great admiration of the British Colonies section. He afterwards entered the fray of exchanging as eagerly as the members themselves.

November 5th.—Owing to the absence of our Secretary and reporter there were no minutes for this meeting.

November 19th.—The President introduced Miss Ostara, who gave a very interesting lecture on "Forgeries." She first gave the members several hints on general collecting, and afterwards exhibited many sheets of forgeries, pointing out in many cases the differences between them and the originals. After passing a vote of thanks to Miss Ostara the meeting was adjourned.

Natural History Notes.

The most recent gifts to the School Museum include a young Peccary (the American wild pig) from Belle Vue Gardens; a Polecat from Mr. Roberts, of Pwllheli; a beautiful Sea-fan (Alcyonaria) from Mr. R. I. Fletcher, of Eccles; a box of Fossils from Miss Emily Cox, of Fallowfield; a Civet Cat from Jackson, of Prep. 2; a White Stoat from Lee, of 11B; and a number of smaller objects from Dr. Berlin, W. G. Price (O.M.), Tong (Math. 6), Whitworth (M.R.), and Barlow (Sh. A.)

With the consent of the High Master, photographs by Mr. R. H. Fletcher of about a score of objects in the School Museum are to appear as illustrations in an edition of Bates's "Naturalist on the Amazon," which will shortly be published by Messrs. Macmillan & Co.

Mr. Howard Bentham, of Caterham, who has worked in conjunction with Mr. Richard Kearton in Bird Photography, has sent us a selection of photographs of birds, taken recently by himself. He contributed illustrations to the "British Bird Book," edited by F. B. Kirkman.

Chess Club.

A good start has been made on this season's programme. The Club has entered two teams for the Manchester League Matches, and has a representative on the League Council. Our results so far are:—

A League: v. Oldham Y.M.C.A. School won 4—3.

C League: v. Metropolitan Vickers. School won 5½—1½.

v. St. Paul's. St. Paul's won 4—3.

Mr. Wahltech kindly came to School this term and gave a simultaneous display, only losing two games out of fifteen. The usual School competitions are now in progress, and there has been a record number of entries this year. All boys interested in chess are invited to join the Club, which meets each afternoon in room 42.
