MIDSUMMER, 1911.

No. 41.

Editorial.

WHILE all the world has been seething with excitement, we have not been very much disturbed in our 'calm serene.' It does not seem a year since we heard on our arrival in School that our King was dead, but yet this term we have been full of the coronation of a new king and the investiture of a Prince at Carnarvon, an honour of which we are nationally proud.

The Old Boys' fixture took place on the same day as the Coronation Festivities. We can only be thankful that we took here the rain, which in London might have spoiled the gaiety of nations. The weather was most unkind, and not only put a stop to an excellent cricket match, but also gave the carnival a rather bedraggled appearance.

Fortune changed and smiled upon us for the Brecon Match. The day was ideal for cricket, and the result of the match satisfied even the most exacting. We must credit our opponents with a very sporting spirit in coming here under very trying circumstances, and with a plucky fight in the face of odds. This was a pleasant conclusion to a very successful cricket season, in which seven matches have been won and three lost. The team were fortunate in having a fast wicket practically throughout the term, while the wet days were so wet that play had to be stopped.

Bathing has been very popular this term, and we have taken full advantage of the hot weather and the splendid facilities afforded us in Dolau and the 'Shallows.'

We take this opportunity of thanking the General Editor, who is leaving us this term, for his untiring work on behalf of this Magazine. He has always been most ready to lighten our task and to take the greater burden of it on his own shoulders. It is with great regret that we lose him.

Shadows of the Board are upon us, and we look sombre in contrast with our surroundings. To the successful ones we look for honours and distinctions, while to those less fortunate we would softly whisper, 'Ail gynnyg i Gymro.'

Oxford Letter.

SIR,—A certain prominent journalist said not long ago that a Magazine, to be successful, needs variety. Unfortunately there is not much variety in an Oxford Letter of the Summer Term: few of us shine in cricket: none are conspicuous on the river: yet it is on these that the interest of this term usually centres.

All up here will agree that we have had a glorious term. The weather throughout has been truly wonderful. Not even that prodigy 'the oldest inhabitant' remembers such a Summer Term: therefore we were compelled to agree with our scout when he said, 'Well, whatever 'appens, sir, yer can say yer've bin ter one heaven at last.'

We have to congratulate L. V. Owen on his being appointed Lecturer in Modern History at Keble College. Both he and A. W. M. Griffiths await the result of History Finals—the former sometimes in the Cadena. W. S. Rowlands may not infrequently be seen careering through the vulgar herd in the High, seated in a trailer attached to a motor bike. Outside the trailer we no not recollect having seen him.

J. L. Williams plays cricket for Oriel, and takes an occasional outing on the river. R. Lloyd remains the bulwark of the O.I.L.'s Society. Jake Morgan, living up in the wilds of Iffley Road, is seldom seen in the city, but often plays tennis. G. Jones we saw—or rather heard—one night in camp at Aldershot, just before 'lights out,' gasping in a thin weak voice from beneath a heaving mass of humanity, 'I am not down yet.' It is rumoured he is going to publish a standard work on wrestling. A. G. Prys-Jones has soared far out of our sight into the realms of poetry: we hear he has lately contributed to the Western Mail or the South Wales Daily News, or both. W. E. Rhydderch often plays cricket for Hertford. Joshua Davies' socks have turned up again.

J. R. Davies, J. R. Jones, T. S. Phillips, and E. S. Jenkins were in camp, doing service for King and Country: the first-named now smokes anything (except his own, alas!), On dit also that, having done the other big stations, he is now meditating a tenth trip to London next term, to visit St. Pancras. B. Rhys and many other O.I.L.'s spent much time on the river, at times alone, at times with 'cousins' attached; Halewood's genial voice often greets us over the river: his mushroom breakfasts are to be strongly recommended.

We were pleased to meet two or three Llandoverians during the term. One evening, walking through the corn, we saw in the distance a 'Study in Scarlet' approaching. At once we knew it was——, and it was, strolling along in approved Oxford style, hatless, negligé, flower in buttonhole, and a ——; we hope he will wear it in October. D. G. Davies and A. B. Mayne again cover the School with honour. We close with the best wishes for the Brecon match, the Board Exams., and everything else.

VIATOR.

Envoi.

WELL, my boy, it is time to say 'good-bye.' You are glad to go, aren't you? Oh yes, you are: you can't deceive your sharp old mother: I've had my eye on you during the last two terms: I've seen it for more than sixty years now. Same old complaint! You actually think you're a man, don't you? . . . . Where's your pocket mirror? Why, what are you blushing for? My dear boy, you're not the first to buy one at this stage: they all do it—they will all continue to do it. . . . What? only bought it to see if you have shaved properly? Come nearer a little. Why, bless my soul, yes, no, if the child doesn't actually shave of all things! My eyes must be getting weaker—but really, I must confess that it was difficult to see what there was to shave from here.

I suppose you are within a year or two of the vote! What? 'Only a citizen's duty?' Now I really do wonder what the child will vote for! How he'll set about it, I know quite well. He'll begin by going to all the meetings and reading all the papers in which most stones are thrown at everything that has been standing now for centuries (some of these things have hardened a bit though, and he'll soon find out that these missiles at times have a nasty habit of obeying an elementary law, rebounding with exactly the same velocity, sometimes back again to the exact spot they came from!). Now how's that, I wonder? Very possibly because the football blood runs strong yet; he used to regard it as a sacred duty to 'grass' every opponent that came in his way: he was true enough about it, bless his heart; never took a mean advantage after all. Yes, it's the football—or perhaps the cricket: I've watched him knocking the stumps flying, or laying on to that ball as if the whole point in the game was to hit off the outer cover, to have a look at the good kernel below. And I nearly forgot to say that he's a man now, and nearly a citizen of a free country, and his opinions are as good as any other's, and conventions ought to be scattered to the winds, and we are the people, and are going to do this and that and the other—in fact everything, it seems to me, but cure my boy of all his charming wisdom.

How like a man! they all talk like that. Now just you come to me and listen to a sensible human being—a woman, your mother. 'Talking like a schoolboy,' am I? My dear wise man, can't you see yet that I never grow old? You can get as old as you like. I've got the great secret. I am always young and always must be so: yet I'm old too—in wisdom. You can come back to me in 40 years' time (I hope you will come before that, and often too), you can come back grey-headed, bent double, feeble in body—and much wiser than you are to-day, because you will at any rate see then how very foolish you must be now. But you will find me as young as ever: no weakness about me—no faintness of spirit, no shortness of breath (except after giving a dose of sound advice to men like you), and above all, my dear dear boy, no shortness of memory for you or any other of my children.

Well, what I was going to say is this. Don't be impatient, though I can see you are fretting to be off. You have got the world in front of you. You want it, don't you? All men do. Now you can get it quite easily. If you want fruit in season, the gardener will tell you what laws you must obey. It's exactly the same here: if you obey one or two little rules, I tell you that this world you want will come to you, if you only show it you have enough nerve and muscle to hold it. Atlas did it in old days, didn't he?—only he groaned beneath it, whereas you can carry it like a feather, if you will only listen.

First then, don't go about whining for sympathy: it isn't worth having at the price, because not many human griefs count for much. No: stand on your own feet first, and get that round hump out of your back. Men stand square.

Next, look straight ahead—don't let your eyes wander: and by that I mean, keep your glance fixed on the lamp of truth I lit especially for your benefit. You will find little penny dips of cant being lit by others of your sex—not mine, thank goodness—who will try to blind you by holding their tallow right before your eyes, if you let them: they will tell you that pleasure is the only thing worth having, although you wouldn't be very pleased with it even if you could get it, as you can't: or they will talk about the freedom of wealth, when you know quite well that it will only make you a slave. You will be quite safe if you will only watch the unlovely drops of candle-fat bespattering everything about you, and remember, candle-fat does not look nice on a man's clothes.

You can then walk away from the world, not towards it. That's the queer part about it all. Try and flatter it, and it will befool you: but just laugh at it and despise it a little, say you don't care much about it, and mean what you say, and it will soon come to you to see what man it is that treats it as it deserves.

And you can just go and forget all about yourself. If you ask me candidly, I will tell you that at present you are not quite worth the wasting of even your thoughts upon yourself. But you will be, when you have forgotten yourself a little. If you really want somebody to think about, go and us your eyes; see if there are not thousands whose shoes you daren't offer to carry—real men—yet in far worse plight than you. Those are worth thinking about: and you will find them if you look properly for them.

You may think this is all very childish and obvious. But, my dear boy, you may be sure that I have chosen my subject and my object with consummate skill. There, give me a kiss: your train is waiting: and come down again as soon as you can to tell me all about it.

'Ægre eo die Sustentatum est.'

‘SHE looks dry to-day.’ The dictum of a local weather-prophet, like an editor's decision, is final. A casual remark of Henry I. was responsible for the murder of Thomas à Becket. It is strange that this trite observation should have led to the turn-out (in mufti) of the Fire Brigade on the evening of June 8th. Not since the memorable occasion of the firing of Vicar Pritchard's hay-rick had the formidable machine been called out to fight the flames; now its services were to be required to water the cricket-pitch.

Punctually an hour and ten minutes after the appointed time the Captain of the Fire Brigade, a strong, well set-up young fellow, strolled methodically down to the scene of action. Seven paces in his rear ambled gently his sleeping partner, or second in command. Neither had previously seen service, and judging by their general appearance had not spent much time in looking for it. A Darwin would possibly note but few points of resemblance between these two, nevertheless the former may fairly be described as the exact double of the latter (thus algebraically  $B = \frac{1}{2}A$ ). Arriving at the exact centre of the pitch the captain came to a halt. A light tap on the shoulder some 7 minutes later informed him of the fact that his comrade in arms had at last caught him up. ‘Has it struck you,’ whispered his speaking likeness, ‘that we have forgotten the fire engine?’ ‘Dear me! such being the case it is incumbent upon us to go and fetch it,’—replied his more agile partner. And they forthwith proceeded to the Fire Station.

Here everything was calm and peaceful. There was none of that bustle and excitement which, to their eternal shame, accompany similar scenes in our large provincial towns. After a brief argument with a verbose native who failed to see why his ‘machine’ should be turned into a ‘blooming watering cart,’ that engine of destruction slowly emerged from the dust of ages. It was not of the latest type. One could almost imagine Moloch's wink when he saw it. ‘Pride of the Pitch,’ a skittish mare with a tendency to jib, was placed between the shafts, and with the captain at the reins and his understudy at the pump, the solemn procession moved soberly on. Negotiating the curves en route with admirable tact, and making a wide détour round the bowling screen, the captain eventually pulled up in front of the pavilion. The fire engine at once became the object of the critical attention and rude comments of those present. Your mathematician buried himself with subtle calculations as to the initial velocity of water capable of being poured forth by an engine of such horse-power; a prominent historian airily labelled the contrivance ‘prehistoric,’ and dated it B.C. 200; while a well-known classic (of the Asiatic school) saw in it a remarkable resemblance to the Roman ‘Testudo.’

Passing over these remarks with well-merited scorn, the captain took off his coat and rolled up his sleeves, thereby revealing a brawny arm and well-developed biceps. Those who thought they could display ditto were quick to follow his example; those who did not, complaining of the evening chill, preferred to work in full dress. Meanwhile sections of hosepipe had been unrolled, and Mr. Spug, the cycle expert, was busy with his puncture-mending outfit. Soon everything was ready. The first relay sprang nimbly to the pump, but, the hydraulic pressure proving unequal to the strain, the engine had to be moved nearer to the water's edge. Presently their labours were awarded. A jet of water sprang from a leak which had somehow escaped the vigilant eye of Mr. Spug. However this was soon remedied, and to the rhythmic sound of the clanking pump a volume of water gushed out, this time from the nozzle.

But now the pumpers began to weary of their toil, they looked for assistance; alas! 'the second relay had slunk away' (Byron). Yes; o'er yonder fence vaults nimbly a youth brandishing aloft a school 'kicker.' They had gone to bathe. And what is that? The captain and his sub-lieutenant, mounted on 'Evening Star' (the second of the fire-brigade stud) burst suddenly into view. The official announcement that leave off prep. would be granted to those helping on the work, checks their undignified flight. Suddenly a pleasing melody was borne gently on the evening breeze; the refrain was lightly taken up by the pumpers who had now gladly returned to work, while at the other extremity of the hosepipe a dripping stalwart was battling fiercely with the burning rays of the setting sun.

It is a sad picture.

The Cricket Season, 1911.

THE XI. of 1911 is deserving of great praise in all departments of the game.

The bowling throughout the season has been steady and in some matches quite good. The batting has been free and the runs scored have been the result of really good driving and cutting, while six members of the team have averages of over 20. The fielding, though quite commendable at the beginning of the season, became magnificent towards the close, and by reason of untiring energy and of swift, accurate throwing-in, runs were kept down in a style suggestive of a good 1st class fielding side.

The 2nd XI. was well up to the average standard, and in one department—that of bowling—considerably above the average. Unfortunately fewer 2nd matches were played than usual, but luckily a considerable number of 'Second games' have been played, so that the loss of 'foreign' matches was not as serious as it might have been.

At the time of writing, the Junior XI. have played but one of their two matches. In this they won a handsome victory, and the form displayed was excellent, a fact which augurs well for the future elevens of the School.

CRICKET CHARACTERS.

1ST XI.

R. M. Humphreys (Capt., 1909-10-11), has made an excellent captain, a brilliant field who never tires. As a bat is much improved, and has come to the rescue of his side more than once.

J. T. Davies (1908-9-10-11), a brilliant field and excellent catch. A good fast medium bowler who varies his pace. As a bat has improved very much, and now scores well all round the wicket.

W. B. Price (1910-11), a very good leg-break bowler who makes the ball 'do' a great deal. Has come on very much as a bat, and has played some excellent innings. A lethargic field.

R. D. Beith (1910-11), a good steady bat with strong defence. Has improved very much in scoring power; a keen and safe point.

H. W. Weeks (1910-11), a brilliant field and safe catch; has beautiful shots, but is at present too eager; with more restraint should make a lot of runs.

D. J. C. Jenkins (1910-11), has kept wicket on occasions exceedingly well. Has improved as a bat; but further progress is impossible until he learns to play with a straight bat.

O. M. Williams (1911), an excellent field and safe catch, a useful change bowler. A free, though at present rather unstylish bat.

B. H. Jones (1911), a splendid left-hand bat with a powerful off drive. As a field has improved almost beyond recognition. A safe catch. He must learn to run better between the wickets.

C. R. Humphreys (1911), a most promising bat with beautiful style. An excellent and hard working field, a promising slow medium bowler.

H. O. Williams (1911), a good-left hand bowler who comes very quickly off the pitch; varies his pace well. An uncertain and somewhat unorthodox bat. A keen and safe field.

J. F. H. Williams (1911), a very promising young cricketer, has improved very much as a field. When older should be a useful fast medium bowler.

2ND XI.

Colours have been awarded to:—

Sir John Owen, Bart., has improved a great deal in bowling, but has not come on as a bat. A poor field.

G. S. Jones, a steady bat with a nice off drive. A promising bowler with a good swinging ball. A moderate field.

L. G. Cooper, a much improved bat, who hits hard—a keen field.

D. T. Williams, a fair wicket keep—a painstaking bat, who has improved very much.

P. W. T. Thomas, a good leg-break bowler. As a bat has nice style, and should be good when he rids himself of a bad cross shot—a good field.

R. Hughes, a useful, though slow scoring bat, with good defence. A keen field.

E. M. Jones, a most promising fast bowler. At present is too erratic; when once he can command a length, will take a lot of wickets. Is improving as a bat and field.

D. O. Williams, a fair bat with a number of good strokes; he must learn to stand up to fast bowling. A fair bowler and keen field.

H. J. Powell, a promising bat, who possesses great hitting powers. A poor field.

Farewell to Llandovery.

MOTHER of Youth, 'twere hard to say 'Farewell,'
Yet must we part awhile: but this I know—
So strong a bond of kinship canst thou throw
On all who yield them to thy magic spell,

That never shall Misfortune ring the knell
Of our dead love. In joy, tears, laughter, woe,
Thy heart is mine, mine thine: where'er I go,
Thou art beside me. Like an organ swell

Peals thy true Mother's voice. 'All who would hear
Their being's Law, come, learn it at my breast.
Aliens I took you in: made you revere

And do the Truth. Sons now, take my behest.
Open your hearts; love wider without fear.
Mine that can live for others live the best.'

The School.

THE School is to be congratulated on the appointment of Benjamin Evans, Esq., of Llanfair Grange, Llandovery, to the body of Governors.

The Earl and Countess of Plymouth have announced their intention of being present at the Distribution of Prizes on August 1st. The Earl is a Trustee of the School.

Mr. A. C. B. Lloyd left at the end of last term to start a preparatory School at Hill Crest, Swanage.

* * * *

Mr. P. H. F. Wiseman (Clifton and Jesus College, Cambridge), has succeeded Mr. Lloyd as IV. Form Master. Mr. Wiseman took a First-class in the Classical Tripos.

* * * *

The Rev. D. Edmondes Owen, Rector of Llanellwedd, has been appointed to the living of Llandovery. Old members of the Field Society will remember an interesting excursion to Builth under his guidance, and the delightful hospitality of Llanellwedd Rectory.

* * * *

E. de Q. Mears has gained a Classical Scholarship, and O. J. Jones a History Exhibition, at Worcester College, Oxford.

* * * *

On March 28, Mr. Oliver Pike, F.Z.S., gave a Lecture in the New Gymnasium on the 'Wonders of Birdland.'

* * * *

The Hockey Team won two out of its three matches, and with longer practice would have been a very fine side.

* * * *

The Sports were quite the best we have had of recent years, and School records trembled in the balance. The best performances were:—The Quarter Mile in 56secs. (R. M. Humphreys), the Long Jump, 19ft. 7in. (L. G. Cooper), and the Mile in 5min. 3secs. (R. M. Humphreys). R. M. Humphreys won the Senior Ladies' Prize, and L. D. Lewis the Junior.

* * * *

The Contest between the School Athletic Team and the Masters was unfortunately spoilt by the weather. It resulted in a draw, each side winning four events.

This term there are six new boys.

Coronation Day and Entertainment.

WE in Wales were not very fortunate this year: we think that our patriotism deserved more kindly of the elements: still, we had made up our mind resolutely not to have our enthusiasm damped, whatever might happen to our skins. At any rate, we had our two days' holiday; that was solid enough. We opened with a service in the Parish Church: the Warden gave us a description of the Coronation Service, quoting a very fine passage from Alfred Noyes, who is a brother of one of our old Boys: we determined to take matters into our own hands in the glorious Coronation Hymn, the organist keeping time with us remarkably well.

The next item in our holiday will be found described in full elsewhere. In the evening we assembled in the Gymnasium for the annual old boys' entertainment. Mr. Conway Rees once more gave us some songs, ably seconded by Dr. Jones. The feature of the evening, however, was the reappearance of R. H. Hughes; he had found time (in the intervals between his exacting scholastic duties), to think out two or three more characters to add to his immortal gallery, and to contribute new glories to the treasury of English Verse. The Turf, the Cause of Law and Order, and the Hustings were in turn favoured and graced by his kindly attention; he showed us how to find poetry everywhere, even in a Policeman's appetite, and humour in a Professor.

The evening closed with Fireworks. The School always extends a warm welcome to all old boys.

Cricket.

SCHOOL v. MASTERS.

School won by 59 runs on the First Innings.

THIS, the opening match of the season, was played on May 16th and 17th, under favourable conditions. R. D. Beith and H. O. Williams opened the innings for the School, but no substantial resistance was offered until Price and Humphreys came together with the score at 19. Price took risks for his 62. The steady batting of Weeks and Jenkins did much to help matters on, and the innings finally closed for 194.

The Warden and Mr. Calcott put a 20 for first wicket, the Warden then being caught by J. F. H. Williams off Price. Mr. Lockyer then joined Mr. Calcott, and some delightful cricket was witnessed. After this partnership was dissolved, wickets fell rapidly to the bowling of Owen and Price, but Mr. Wiseman played freely at the close of the innings, which realised 135 runs.

In the second innings the School made 120 for 7. Scores—

SCHOOL v. LLANDOVERY TOWN.

The annual match with the Town was played on the College ground on May 25th under ideal conditions. It proved an easy victory for the Collegians. The latter batting first, a brilliant display was afforded by R. D. Beith, who scored 140 not out. Price and R. M. Humphreys played sound cricket. With the score at 227 for three wickets, the School declared.

In reply the Town scored 136 runs, mainly by the aid of D. T. M. Jones and C. P. Lewis. The tail batted but feebly. Scores—

SCHOOL v. S.D.C. LAMPETER.

Lampeter won the toss, but put the School in first. The latter made good use of this advantage, Beith and Price again starting well by scoring 75 for the first wicket. Later, when Weeks joined Price, a fifth wicket stand of 124 was made. In his 144 not out Price scored a 6 and thirteen 4's. Both Beith and Weeks were unfortunate in not reaching their 50's. Price took seven wickets for 32, the School gaining an easy victory. Scores—

SCHOOL v. PONTARDULAIS.

The School, who batted first, again made a good start, Price and Beith passing the half-century before being separated. Price played a good innings of 59. After this, J. T. Davies, B. A. Jones, and R. M. Humphreys all batted well. At 161 for 5 the School declared.

Pontardulais started badly, but finally scored 106, J. Williams contributing 50. The fielding was good, B. A. Jones and Weeks both being conspicuous in the long field, and O. M. Williams in the slips. Scores—

SCHOOL v. MR. PERCY REES' XI.

This match was played under favourable conditions for good cricket. The visitors winning the toss elected to bat first, and, with Conway Rees and Howell giving a splendid exhibition of batting, put on 344 for 4 wickets. R. D. Beith, R. M. Humphreys, and O. M. Williams were the most successful for the School, the innings closing for 90.

SCHOOL v. TOWN.

Played on June 8th on the Town ground. Winning the toss, R. M. Humphreys elected to go in first, and Beith and Price were sent to open the innings. Beith was bowled by Edgar Evans after he had made 1, and was shortly followed by Price. The useful partnership of Weeks and Humphreys, which realised 34 runs, was the most attractive feature of the School innings, which closed for 115.

From the first the School bowling was treated lightly. D. T. M. Jones played sound cricket for his 43, and J. Conway Rees, after hitting Price freely, was well caught and bowled by him when the score stood at 86. C. P. Lewis batted forcibly, and speedily cleared off arrears.

The hand fielding of the School was good throughout, but the number of dropped catches was a striking feature of the match. Scores—

SCHOOL v. PLYMOUTH MERTHYR.

Played on the College ground on June 12th, the weather being rather trying. The visitors proved too strong for the homesters both in attack and defence. Davey and Harries batted well, while the bowling of Hacker was far too good for the School. The latter, however, contrived to put up some sort of defence, especially in the latter portion of the game. Scores—

SCHOOL v. REV. H. H. WILLIAMS' XI.

This match was played on June 15th on the School ground. Our opponents went in first, but gave little resistance with the exception of P. E. M. Richards, who compiled a steady 57. The bowling honours were shared by Price, H. O. Williams, and Davies.

Beith and Price started the School innings well, putting on 49 for the first wicket. Davies joined Price, and together they carried the score to 100 before Price was dismissed for an excellent 43, obtained by good cricket. The third wicket fell for 103, but Humphreys and Davies carried the score to 163. Humphreys and O. M. Williams played well for their 21 and 25, while Davies carried out his bat for the splendid score of 89, including 16 fours. Scores—

SCHOOL v. OLD LLANDOVERIANS.

Played on June 22nd and 23rd, and resulted in a draw. Unhappily the weather deprived this most enjoyable of all our fixtures of a large measure of success, play only being possible between the showers.

T. Davies and R. G. Pritchard opened the innings for the Old Boys. After Pritchard had been unfortunately run out at 11, Davies and Beith, the former batting vigorously, brought the score up to 32. Some lively cricket was witnessed when J. Conway Rees and Mr. Lockyer came together at 65, and towards the close of the day's play a fine stand for last wicket was made by P. Richards and T. W. Thomas, and the innings was declared closed.

There was less play on the second day than on the first, the match having to be abandoned after about 2 hours' play, during which Beith played a faultless innings of 55 not out, and B. A. Jones made a speedy 34 not out. The School thus being left with the creditable total of 128 for 2. Scores—

SCHOOL v. CHRIST COLLEGE, BRECON.

For our most important fixture all circumstances, as far as cricket was concerned, were most favourable, the day being splendid, and the pitch in excellent condition. Humphreys won the toss and sent in Beith and Price. The latter was, however, bowled with only 5 on the board by a good ball from Howell. J. T. Davies, who followed him, enlivened matters by playing good forcing cricket for 35. B. A. Jones, who came in after Beith, played steadily at first, and helped Davies to put on 65 for the third wicket. R. M. Humphreys, Weeks, and Jenkins were dismissed for 11, 11, and 8 respectively, when another good stand was made by O. M. Williams and B. A. Jones, who, batting freely, increased the score from 130 to 184. Williams was then 'sent back' by a 'hot' return held by H. S. Davies. B. A. Jones next left, being run out after a valuable 61. Not much resistance was given by the later batsman, and the whole side were out for the very respectable total of 199.

Brecon opened their innings well, opposed to the bowling of Davies and Price. When G. M. O. Evans was run out with the score at 71 for 4, H. O. Williams relieved J. T. Davies, and, bowling with a good length, caused the side to collapse, taking in all five wickets for 22 runs. The whole innings closed for 101.

Brecon followed on, and this innings was marked by a dashing innings by our opponents' captain, who knocked up 47 not out. Price proved very deadly, and took four wickets for 40. Five wickets had fallen for 82, when the stumps were drawn.

For the School J. T. Davies and O. M. Williams batted very well, while B. A. Jones' 61 was a great performance, being the highest score in the 'Brecon' for some years. L. O. Williams and Price bowled very well on a very fast pitch, and their good analyses are well merited.

For our opponents in the first innings, G. M. O. Evans batted well, and Howell played spiritedly in the second. Howell was also very deadly with the ball.

The fielding on both sides was very good and keen. Scores—

HOUSE MATCH. COLLEGE HOUSE v. NEW BUILDINGS.

This important match took place on Saturday, July 15, on the cricket pitch. B: A. Jones and D. T. Williams batted very well for College House, being ably supported by the bowling of W. B. Price. For the New Buildings the best performance was the plucky stand made at the end of the innings by Humphreys and H. H. G. Williams, both of whom hit the bowling very nicely.

College House thus remain unbeaten: they adapted themselves to the truer pitch with some skill. Scores—
